That New Baby Buying and Selling Time to Advertise There Were Two Gamblers

—By Arthur Brisbane—

REPORTERS SAY the Lindbergh baby's first name will be Charles. The middle name, if any, ought to be Morrow, since it can't be Anne.

Another reporter said:

"The birth of a boy made Lindbergh's biggest dream come true."

The birth of a girl might have made a bigger dream come true.

First, an older sister is a good influence on younger brothers.

Second, girls, not boys, inherit the genius of the father.

But the Lindbergh baby boy will inherit through his mother the talent of his grandfather, Dwight W. Morrow, and that is worth having.

Scientists tell you: "Acquired characteristics are not inherited." They are wrong. If acquired characteristics were not inherited we should all still be cave men.

The Lindbergh baby, inheriting flying on both sides, will fly naturally.

Galton's studies in heredity prove that girl babies inherit their fathers' powers. And the four-months-old baby girl belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., proves it also. If you lend her one finger, she seizes it and pulls herself straight up in her crib. She gets that from her father's polo, right hand. Inheriting the financial ability of the Mellon family, through her mother, she ought to be well equipped.

When prices are high in Wall Street, men buy.

When prices are low, men sell.

The late Russell Sage said:

"Everybody has at least one chance in his life to buy Western Union at $50 a share. Don't miss your chance when it comes."

In the next few weeks or months, thousands will have opportunities for good investment that may not come again in their lives. But they will wait patiently until prices have been driven sky high, and THEN they will buy.

These are dull days, and energetic days for advertising. The turtle ran while the rabbit was asleep, and won. The wise advertiser builds his business while others indulge in a "false economy" nap.

Mr. Davies Lewis, advertising manager of Cadillac automobile, has framed on his office wall the reply of the champion "hog caller," when asked how he won the competition:

"You must have appeal as well as power in your voice. You must make the hog believe THAT YOU HAVE SOMETHING FOR HIM."

In modern business, you must not only make the hog believe that you have something for him, you must REALLY HAVE something for him.

Worried Wall Street felt better yesterday, the tiresome "rush to sell" was banished by a "rebound in prices."

Even cotton and wheat, depressed in the morning, picked up in the afternoon.

"Business Week" tells of an old gentleman elected county treasurer, then lured into a "no limit" poker game by two professional gamblers.

They bet $1000. He retired for a moment, bringing back all the money he had, and all the money belonging to the county, and told the gamblers, "Before you win, you will have to break me and the county, too." The gamblers quit.

Telling that story to newspaper men, Mr. Legge of the farm board indicated that grain gamblers, selling short against Uncle Sam, might rue it.

Allan Hoover, son of the President, bought a set of union overalls and has gone to work in a New Jersey plant of the American Radiator Co. He wants to "learn the manufacturing business from the bottom."

The best way to do that would be to get a job as office boy with Mr. Clarence Woolley, top head of the American Radiator Co., and listen to observations made by that gentleman in the course of business. He really does know the business from the bottom up.

You can learn more about a man or a business by paying attention to the head than by spending time on the feet.

The Prince of Wales, 36 years old yesterday, has ordered himself, as a birthday present, a new airplane, described as "luxurious."

Liner Says Southern Cross Cut Through Banks at 100 Miles an Hour

Portland, Me., June 24—The Curtiss refueling plane Robin arrived here today from Curtiss Field, N. Y., after a short stopover at Boston, and is ready with gasoline for a radio call from the Southern Cross, which is expected early tomorrow morning off the coast of Maine.

London, June 24 (AP)—Late afternoon messages from the transatlantic plane Southern Cross said that she had flown through fog from 3:15 p. m. until 4:20 p. m. and that soon after the fog was all gone.

The Dutch liner Volendam notified the Associated Press that she had been in touch with the Southern Cross at 1:40 p. m., British summer time, (8:40 a. m. Boston daylight time) and that the plane then was maintaining a speed of 100 miles an hour in a fog. The Southern Cross reported her position as 990 miles from Cape Race, Newfoundland, in a message to the steamship Ingoma at 4 p. m. British summer time (11 a. m. Boston daylight saving time).

ON TRUE COURSE

The message received by the Ingoma from the Southern Cross said:

"Latitude 51.30 north, longitude 29 west. Steering 261. True speed 100 miles an hour. Three p. m. Greenwich meridian time. Nine hundred and ninety miles from Cape Race."

This message indicated the plane was on a true course toward Newfoundland and had practically completed the first half of the overseas leg between Ireland and Cape Race. The plane was directly over the steamship lane between southern Ireland and Cape Race, and

YANKEE BEATEN BY ENTERPRISE

Newport, R. I., June 24 (AP)—The Enterprise won the second of the series of yacht races for the honor of defending the America's cup, off here today. The Yankee finished second and was followed by the Westamne, Whirlwind, Vanitie and Resolute, in that order.

The Enterprise finished forty-two seconds ahead of the Yankee, sailed by Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy.

At the end of the first ten-mile windward leg the Enterprise had taken a lead with the Yankee close behind and she maintained her lead, while the Yankee clung to second place. Both held their positions to the finish.

At the second ten-mile mark the yachts held the same positions as at the first, except that the Vanitie had passed the Resolute.

Two Boys Drown in Framingham Pond

Framingham, June 24 — Two youths drowned—one giving his life in a vain effort to save the other—during an early morning bathing party in Larned's pond today.

John Francis Sheehan, 20, and Joseph D. Martini, 15, left their homes last night to go to the railroad station and see a circus train.

When, sometime after midnight, they had not returned to their homes, their parents became alarmed and notified the police.

On the bathing beach at Larned's pond, police found their clothing piled at 4 o'clock this morning. A searchlight revealed their bodies in the water 20 feet from shore. Patrolman Norman D. Snell recovered the bodies.

Police Probe Fatal Beating Given Man

Inspector James J. Dennessey of the homicide bureau and Capt. John M. Anderson of Division 3 today began an investigation of the death of Coleman McDevitt, 55, of 41 Oneida st., South End. McDevitt died at his home of a beating, according to Medical Examiner Timothy Leary.

Mrs. McDevitt told police her husband returned home last night bleeding from cuts on the head, mouth and hand, and told her he had been beaten by a panhandler at the Back Bay station. Police believe he suffered his injuries at the hands of a bootlegger.

Dawes to Return to London at Once

Chicago, June 24 (INS)—Rumors that Ambassador Charles G. Dawes would resign his post at the court of St. James were spiked today with the announcement that he plans to leave Chicago this afternoon for London.

HOOVER SCORES VETS' BILL

Detroit, June 24 (AP)—The American Medical Association today came to the support of President Hoover in his opposition to the liberalized World War veterans' pension bill. In a resolution passed in the House of Delegates, the bill was criticized as "without basis in the science and art of medicine."

Washington, June 24 (AP)—President Hoover today renewed his attack upon the World War veterans relief bill, declaring it was bad legislation.

At his regular Tuesday press conference, the President said the bill passed 66 to 4 by the Senate yesterday was not formulated any more in the interest of the veterans than of the taxpayers.

He expressed doubt that the country would support such legislation, describing it as wasteful and discriminatory.

It would affect 75,000 veterans and was unfair to others who would not be benefited by it, the President continued, and violates the integrity of the government.

The President, in his statement, said:

Is Said to Be Suffering From Acute Bladder Trouble, With Toxic Symptoms

Vatican City, Rome, June 24 (AP)—The Pope was reported today suffering severely from an acute bladder trouble, with reported symptoms of toxic poisoning.

The Pope was known to be having some illness of this nature for a considerable time. Today's reports had it that his condition was aggravated by participation in long ceremonies of canonization on Sunday.

It was understood doctors had effected a drainage before Sunday's rites, which relieved the patient considerably and enables him to issue a vigorous appearance.

The reaction, it was said, set in after a series of audiences which he gave today.

Will Ollie Be Fish for Police Dragnet?

By WIN BROOKS.

"Get Garrett!"

From the D. A.'s office, from police headquarters, from the head of the State police and from the office of an international agency, the order goes forth:

'Get Garrett!"

Will they get him?

Eventually, no doubt.

If eventually, who not now?

SOME REASONS WHY

In the first place, Mr. Garrett is a gentleman of a certain kind of smartness. In the second place he has a host of friends who will, to say the least, be very reticent about giving information as to his whereabouts—if they know. And in the third, it is not written in history that fugitives are quickly brought to book, although it is conceded that eventually a majority are.

Accident or their own mistakes generally result in the capture of smart men fleeing from justice. Sometimes we have a particularly brilliant piece of detective work resulting in apprehension, but such is the exception, rather than the rule. The

BEARS HAMMER RAILS DOWN

New York, June 24 (AP)—Share prices were again seat skidding during the latter part of today's session on the stock exchange. A long list of important rails and industrials dropped $3 to $6, while losses in a few of the erratic issues ran to a maximum of $20 a share. Most of yesterday's gains were cancelled, and a long list of issues dropped to new lows for 1930, while several broke through last November's bottom levels.

Trading was dull until the final half hour, when stocks of all descriptions were sold in considerable volume.

POLICE CLOSE IN ON HUB RUM RAID FUGITIVE

Get a Warrant Good in All the States; McCarthy on Trial; May Hold Wife

Indication of the imminent arrest of Oliver B. Garrett, defaulter, for whom search extends from Philadelphia to Canada, was seen today when an exemplified copy of the warrant for the former liquor raider was issued.

The warrant was given to Inspector John H. McCarthy, appearing in the case for the first time, and provides for the arrest and detention of Garrett as a fugitive from justice, in any state in the Union.

While headquarters, from which McCarthy was assigned, refused to admit definite information as to the whereabouts of Garrett, officials would not say they did not have a definite lead.

Developments today further revealed that the one-time dictator of the bootleggers Hiner squad probably left town Saturday night in company of two notorious underworld figures, one of them a gunman.

TWO FRIENDS GONE

These two men, who were friendly with Garrett when he had the power of high justice, middle and low over the liquor squad and speakeasy proprietors, are missing from their haunts in the South End, police learned.

One was mentioned in connection with the investigation of the murder of Samuel Reinstein in a Back Bay hotel and the other has been a bodyguard for white slavers for 10 years.

They were last seen in Boston Saturday night, seated in a powerful roadster parked in front of a Massachusetts ave. restaurant.

One was at the wheel of the expensive machine, and the other sat beside him, while baggage was piled in the open rumble.

The significance of their presence in this particular spot, according to police, lies in the fact that directly over the restaurant is an apartment at which Garrett was a frequent visitor during the winter.

This apartment was vacated May 22 but officials have reason to believe Garrett had visited it since that time. In this connection a tenant was being sought for further information.

In the meantime Inspector Joseph Decker and Special Officer Joseph McBrine, who has been working on the case under direct orders from Dist. Atty. Foley were missing from his office and no information could be obtained as to their activities.

Bondsmen who furnished sureties for both Mr. and Mrs. Garrett today suspended surrender operations on the wife's bonds, pending developments in the search for her husband.

It is understood that unless Garrett is found within 24 hours or sooner, Mrs. Garrett and Mrs. Lillian V. Hatch, his co-defendants in the bribery and extortion trial he defaulted, will be surrendered.

Mrs. Garrett is believed to be the key to the problem of the missing former liquor raider.

WIDE HUNT ON

Considerable speculation was also aroused as to whether, if she were forced to go to jail, she will maintain the silence which she has maintained and talk to the officials.

In the mean time the biggest man hunt the east has known in years, which was centered in New York's East Side, included Philadelphia and Canada.

During the attorney-general's investigation of Garrett it was learned that he had been accustomed to making visits to Philadelphia and was said to have money in banks in that city.

It was also more or less reliably reported that the liquor raider owned property in Canada, and with this in mind steps were taken to follow both trails.

Dist. Atty. William J. Foley declared he had ordered that no escapes be spared in running down the defaulter, and that operatives of the Pinkerton Agency were busy.

He said that while he had no definite information that Garrett had gone to New York, the route he took on leaving Boston would indicate there was something in that theory.

Asked if Garrett would go to trial apprehended early in July, the district attorney said that Judge [illegible] P. Dillon is available at any [illegible].

MAY JAIL HIM

The present jurors, he added, will be available up to July 3 [illegible] that jurors could be obtained in 20 hours.

The question as to whether Garrett would be admitted to bail after being seized, he said, was entirely up to the presiding judge, who, if he desired, could remove the default and fix bail.

He pointed out the court could fix mail at so high a figure Garrett might have difficulty in obtaining it.

Provided with important information, William Wagner, New York Pinkerton detective who knows Garrett, was turned loose on his trail and is expected to arrest him tomorrow.

SURRENDER HALTED.

Dist. Atty. Foley was informed that the two women co-defendants of Garrett are in seclusion and that Mrs. Garrett is under the care of a physician as a result of the strain she has undergone.

Her bondsmen, who were also on the $13,000 bond of her husband, which the district attorney has started suit to recover, were in conference with a close friend of Mrs. Garrett, as a result of which surrender proceedings were halted.

In the meantime Dist. Atty. Foley, who is personally handling the search for the fugitive former liquor raider, arranged through the Boston Pinkerton office for Wagner to take up the search in New York.

Henry G. Mosher, in charge of the criminal division of the New York Pinkerton office, assigned the famous man hunter, who knows Garrett by sight.

Wagner has handled New York investigations for the Boston district attorney's office for ten years.

He is familiar with the New York underworld, and particularly the East Side, where Garrett is said to have been hidden by former associates of the late "Cuts" Joe Levine.

Levine and his ex-wife, "Queen Pauline," were under indictment here in the federal white slave probe. He died of heart failure a short time ago. He was a close friend of Garrett, as was his divorced wife. Neither gave any information when questioned in Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner's inquiry of Garrett.

It is understood Mrs. Garrett had no knowledge that her husband planned to default and his action, coming on top of the strain she was already undergoing, is said to have resulted in her near-collapse.

Attorney Herbert F. Callahan, counsel for all the defendants, said Mrs. Garrett is unable to see anyone at present, but will be available when wanted in court, as will Mrs. Hatch.

Photographs and circular description of Garrett were in the hands of New York police and detectives today, while hundreds of similar photographs and circulars were being sent by Dist. Atty. Foley to police of cities and towns throughout the East.

The district attorney confidently expects that within half a dozen hours after Garrett steps into the street from his hiding place, wherever it may be, he will be under arrest as a fugitive from justice.

It was openly intimated after it became assured that Garrett had fled, that his "go-up" was taken because he feared standing trial with Judge Dillon on the bench.

Judge Dillon has gained the reputation for administering stern justice and for allowing no emotions to sway his decisions.

Admittedly it will be a long and arduous task to select a jury agreeable to both sides and free from suspicion. The Garrett case has received such widespread publicity that few men on a jury panel will not have absorbed it in most of its details, and many unquestionably will have formed an opinion.

After Garrett was defaulted in court it became known that since his being indicted he has been under surveillance constantly by private detectives working for Dist.-Atty. Foley.

4 Fliers Speeding to U. S. in Southern Cross

ALONG "GREAT CIRCLE"

The sweeping direction, "261," indicated that the plane was heading west and slightly south, which would take her along the "Great Circle" course toward Cape Race.

The Southern Cross, already victor over the Pacific, is seeking to conquer the Atlantic in the first westward flight from Europe to New York.

Aboard the plane are Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, pilot, who successfully steered it on the first flight from America to Hawaii and Australia; J. W. Stannage, radio operator; M. E. Van Dyk, assistant pilot, and Capt. J. T. Saul, navigator.

The Southern Cross was 800 miles out from the Irish coast and "going strong" an earlier wireless message from her said at 1:30 p. m. 8:30 Boston time.

This would place the Southern Cross close to the halfway overwater mark between Ireland and Cape Race, Newfoundland.

FLYING 2000 FEET UP

A message at 12:55 p. m. British time (7:55 a. m. Boston time) said:

"Everything O. K.

"We are flying 2000 feet up. Already battling along at 165 miles an hour.

"Made splendid takeoff, flying fine."

A message received at 10:30, British time, had given the Southern Cross position as about 500 miles off the Irish coast.

The ship was heavily loaded at the takeoff from the famous "silver strand" beach at Port Marnock, with enough gas for three hours margin of safety after the entire calculated distance of flight.

The takeoff was at 4:28 a. m. British time today 11:27 p. m., Monday, Boston daylight time).

An early message, at 10:15 a. m., British time read:

"Shooting suns and things! Icy cold outside. Bet Van and Smith are feeling it. We are all wrapped up like polar explorers but it is still pretty nippy."

Another message, timed 11:05 a. m., read:

"Eleven a. m., 53.15 north, 16 57 west.

"Average ground speed since leaving coast 82 statute miles per hour. This is satisfactory and leaves us good margin.

"All aboard O. K. Are cheerful.

"Engine revolutions 1675. Air speed now 106 miles per hour."

Ten thousand persons witnessed the departure of the Southern Cross from Port Marnock, cheering frantically as the plane started and as it left the ground.

Among the spectators were Governor-General MacNeil; the American minister, Frederick A. Sterling and Mrs. Sterling, and many other noted figures.

3304-MILE COURSE

Ahead of the ship at its departure lay a course of 3304 miles to New York.

The airmen expected a trip of about 34 hours, which would bring them to New York at about 6:17 a. m. Eastern daylight time, Wednesday.

First Message to Bay State From Ocean Fliers

Chatham, June 24 (INS)—At 7 o'clock eastern daylight saving time today, a message received by the Radio Corporation of America here, indicated that Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and his three companions on the latest attempt to bridge the ocean by air from east to west, had met thus far with signal success.

The message gave the plane's position as 53.15 north latitude, 16.57 west longitude. The average "ground speed," the message said, was 82 statute miles an hour.

"This is satisfactory," the message from Maj. Kingsford-Smith said, "and leaves us a good margin. All aboard are safe."

OCEAN FLIGHT REFUEL PLANE VISITS HUB

Curtiss-Robin Then Hops Off to Maine to Give Aid to Southern Cross

En route to Portland airport, the Curtiss Robin, which will refuel Capt. Kingsford-Smith's Southern Cross off the coast of Maine, if the daring Australian flyer makes the transatlantic crossing, stopped at Boston Airport today.

Later she flew to Portland, Me.

The Curtiss Robin is the plane from which the St. Louis Robin was refueled on its record flight of 420 hours.

Boston pilots today were confident that Kingsford-Smith would be successful, and preparations for receiving him, if he chooses to make a landing here, were ordered by Supt. Albert L. Edson at the airport.

Airport Electrician James Keith will be on duty all night to switch on the flood lights in an emergency, but the airport fliers predicted the Australian would fly over Boston tomorrow on his way to New York.

Harold "Bud" Fisher was at the controls of the Curtiss Robin with Arne Melstvelt as refueler. The Curtiss-Wright Flying Service in New York received a cable yesterday from Kingsford-Smith and the Robin was dispatched this morning from Curtiss field in response to the message.

TO GIVE 203 GALLONS

On the side of the Robin, which is used as a blackboard for messages during refueling operations are chalked the words:

Welcome to the U. S., Capt. Kingsford-Smith."

The ship carries 125 gallons of gas, and the plan is to make two trips into the air, for two refueling contacts somewhere off Maine tomorrow morning, so as to give the Southern Cross at least 200 gallons.

The crew will wait at Portland airport for a radio from the Southern Cross and then will go out to meet her. An earlier plan of Capt. Kingsford-Smith's for refueling far at sea was abandoned because, as Pilot Fisher said today:

"Somebody would have to refuel us."

All available army planes in Boston will go out to greet Capt. Kingsford-Smith and escort him down the coast if and when word received tomorrow of his approach, Capt. Christopher W. Ford, commander of the airport army detachment announced. National Guard planes are also expected to participate in this welcome.

Brockton, June 24—Despite competition from an itinerant circus and the approach of the hoodoo "13," Ralph D'Agostino, local stationary aviator, will complete his 12th day of flagpole sitting at 2 o'clock this afternoon with high hopes of breaking the record and making a day's pay.

Auburndale Man Charged With Fraud in Handling His Clients' Affairs

The registration of Edgar O. Butz of Auburndale as a salesman of securities was today revoked by John C. Hull, director of the "blue sky" division in the department of public utilities, on the ground that Butz was guilty of "gross fraud" in handling the investment affairs of clients.

Complaints were brought against Butz by Miss Edith M. Dwight of Holliston and John F. Dwight of Scituate, brother and sister.

"The evidence presented leaves no reasonable doubt that the registrant has been guilty of gross fraud in his dealings with the complaints," the Hull cancellation order read.

"Miss Dwight, particularly, trusted the registrant with her securities, relied upon his representations, which often were dishonest and intentionally so, and as a result thereof has been fraudulently deprived of both security and money belonging to her. Her trust and confidence in the respondent have been flagrantly betrayed."

Hull declared Butz sold and bought securities for the Dwights, particularly Miss Dwight, for three or four years. He said it was not possible to estimate the exact loss because of the involved nature of the transactions, but that the total value of the securities owned by Miss Dwight was under $10,000.

HOOVER AGAIN HITS VETS' BILL

the government has long since generously provided for the men whose disabilities arise from the war itself.

"These cases before us, except for a comparatively small number of marginal ones, are in reality men disabled from incidents of civil life since the war.

"The whole matter is one that must be approached in a high sense of justice and without sympathy. But this veterans bill is just bad legislation.

"The financial burdens, the amount of which has again been reaffirmed by General Hines, and they were even increased by Senate amendments yesterday, do constitute a serious embarrassment to the government to to the country. But there are other objections even more serious.

NEGLECTS 200,000

"This bill selects a particular group of 75,000 to 100,000 men, makes provision for them in the most wasteful and discriminatory way conceivable and entirely neglects the equal rights of over 200,000 more veterans who are likewise suffering from disabilities incurred in civil life since the war.

"Furthermore, the very basis of the bill sets up an unfair basis and, according to our physicians, a physically impossible 'presumption' and predicates its action upon this. For instance, a man who has served a few years in the army in his home town or in camps, and afterwards enjoyed seven to 12 years of good health, then after all that time incurs any infliction is thereby declared to have disability due to the war and is to be compensated or pensioned on the same basis as the man who suffered in the trenches and from actual battle. It contains many other discriminations and injustices.

"The American Legion presented a bill designed for emergencies which has had the earnest support of many administration members, and I believe the nation would support that.

"I do not believe thecountry will support this bill."

Perle Howard Scores In $455,000 Suit

New York, June 24 (INS)—Score victory No. 1 for dainty Perle Howard, dancer, who is suing Leonard E. Bergman, nephew of the late A. L. Erlanger, for $455,000.

Yesterday Justice Townley ruled out Bergman's answer to the suit, on the motion of Miss Howard. Bergman had said some mighty un-pleasant things about Miss Howard in his answer.

In granting the motion, Justice Townley said it was too bad if Miss Howard had acted as Bergman alleged, but it could not be used to mitigate damages.

Perle Howard

She asks $200,000 for alleged breach of promise, $200,000 for alleged breach of contract to provide; 20,000 on still another contract, and $5000 for money she says she gave Bergman to invest for her.

TAKING TIME FOR FAMILY DISCUSSION

Charles Augustus, Jr., Said to Be Favored by Child's Mother

Englewood, N. J., June 24 (US)—An amicable discussion of tremendous importance was taking place today in the home of Ambassador Dwight Morrow.

It was:

"Shall we name the baby Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr?

"Or,

"Shall we name the baby Charles Dwight Lindbergh or Charles Morrow Lindbergh?

The latter would combine the names of father and maternal grandfather.

The former was reported to be upheld by Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh, the once demure poet of Smith College who Sunday became the mother of the most famous baby in the United States.

And the latter was reported to have the support of Charles Augustus Lindbergh himself; a colonel, a flier, and the father of the blue-eyed son born Sunday at 3:15 p. m. (weight seven pounds and three-quarters), on the 24th birthday of Mrs. Lindbergh.

FIVE DAYS TO DECIDE

Spokesmen for the Morrow home suggested, however, that it would be well for the country not to hold its breath until the decision is made of what the baby's name shall be.

It is not necessary for the birth certificate of the baby to be filed for five days, and the Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh were understood to be in no hurry to arrive at that decision. Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow, it was said, are taking no part in this discussion.

The ambassador is going about with a wide grin calling himself "grandfather" at intervals just to hear how the new name sounds.

Joyful in her new-found motherhood, Mrs. Lindbergh is resting comfortably. The baby also was reported to be doing excellently.

It was apparent that the colonel had no fears of the condition of his wife and son, for yesterday he journeyed to New York to greet another famous American adventurer—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

The admiral said later that he had congratulated the colonel on becoming a father, and also had praised him for his record breaking coast-to-coast flight. Lindbergh had lauded the way the Polar flights had been made, stressing their careful planning.

TO MEET BYRD AGAIN

The two agreed to meet again in July for an extended discussion on the development of aviation.

Meanwhile, at the Morrow home, several interesting things were taking place.

Item No. 1 was the arrival of certified milk.

Item No 2 was the arrival of a maroon baby carriage. This was refused at the gate and was apparently the scheme of a carriage manufacturer to gain for himself a little publicity.

Item No. 3 was the arrival of a weary looking messenger boy with telegraphed and cabled congratulations from all over the world.

PLANS NEW FLIGHT

Among them were messages from President Hoover, Don Manuel C. Tellez, Mexican Ambassador to Washington, and persons prominent in aviation circles.

Flowers and other gifts sent by friends were delivared in a truck.

Col. Lindbergh, after his call on Admiral Byrd yesterday, said he "hoped in the near future" to make a tour of all the Pan-American Airways lines. He is technical adviser for the lines. Such a trip would take him down the West Coast as far as Santiago De Chile, across the continent to Buenos Aires and down the East Coast to Rio De Janeiro. His previous South American flights have taken him to Venezuela, Colombia, Dutch and British Guiana.

Eight Lindy Museum Dolls All Ready for New Baby

St. Louis, June 24 (AP)—Visitors to Jefferson Memorial here used to look at some of the gifts Col Charles A. Lindberg received after his flight from New York to Paris and smile. What, they wondered, would he ever do with the eight dolls he received.

Today Mrs. Nettie H. Beauregard, curator of the Missouri Historical Society, custodian of many of Lindbergh's gifts, said she was ready to send the dolls to Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh if they asked for them.

Woman Who 'Keeps a Maid' Is Elected School Teacher

Over the vigorous opposition of one member, who declared that she keeps a maid and runs an automobile, Mrs. Marion L. Whitney was elected a teacher today by the Somerville school committee.

Committeeman Dr. Dewire argued in opposition that more than 100 girls had been to him for positions as teachers, and he did not think it proper, when girls had been put through normal school at great sacrifice to their parents, to force them to give way to a married woman.

Miss Elizabeth Cairnes, another member of the school committee, said she was opposed to married women as teachers when their husbands are able to work.

She charged that married women who were keeping single girls out of jobs were "greedy."

Mrs. Whitney, who is made a teacher in the junior high school, had failed of election at two previous meetings.

Mayor Murphy took a hand in the discussion and scored the Democrats for failing to stick together while their Republican colleagues voted as a bloc.

"The school committee can give the board of aldermen cards and spades and still beat them in playing politics," said the mayor, to which Committeeman Nangle replied that the aldermen were meeting five or six nights a week "to spend the public money."

Ten cadet teachers elected were Frances Mendell, Edith G. Foy, Helen Kane, Catherine Fleming, Irene Allen, Elena Warka, Dolphie Berg, Paul Broderick, Isabelle Leyden and Julia Arata. Miss Alice Sullivan was elected sewing teacher.

DENIES RIGHT TO HOLD BACK PACT PAPERS

Senator Shipstead Sees Constitution Ignored by Hoover; Treaty Reported to Senate

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service

Washington, June 24—The Senate foreign relations committee voted yesterday, 16 to 4, to report the London naval treaty favorably to the Senate.

Those opposing ratification of the treaty as "un-American, unfair and unjust" were Senators Johnson (R) of California, Moses (R) of New Hampshire, Robinson (R) of Indiana, and Shipstead (FG) of Minnesota.

Friends of the treaty merely gave it a pat on the back and wished it good luck in the Senate. The majority did not submit any argument in its behalf. A short resolution of ratification was prepared and presented by Chairman Borah.

MINORITY ATTACK

The minority, on the other hand, agreed upon a smashing attack. Sen. Johnson was selected to write the dissenting report. He will have it ready for the Senate within a day or two.

A quiet move to unhorse Sen. Watson of Indiana, as Republican leader of the Senate because he has not been an aggressive champion of the treaty was started yesterday.

Those who favor the scheme want to elevate Sen. McNary of Oregon to the leadership.

Watson has not committed himself on the treaty, but he urged President Hoover to postpone its consideration until next fall.

Two supplementary minority reports were prepared by Senator Moses and Senator Shipstead. Moses withheld his report for presentation with Johnson's.

ON SECRET PAPERS

Shipstead, assailing President Hoover's action in withholding pertinent secret documents as vitiating the proposed treaty and as relegating the Senate to the role of a rubber stamp in treaty making, introduced his report yesterday.

The committee, it became apparent today, is not yet done with the controversy with President Hoover and Secretary Stimson over the secret documents.

Upon their return they will make their home in the $75,000 residence built for them by the bridegroom's father at his Pocantico Hills estate near Tarrytown, N. Y. # STARS FORETELL BABY LINDY AS A SCHOLAR

MASTER LINDBERGH

Born: Englewood, N. J., Lat. 31 N., Long. 74 W., June 22, 1930, 9:18 p. m., E. S. T.)

By EDNA BLAKE HALD, Astrologer.

Master Lindbergh's horoscope shows a beautiful blending of the best qualities of both parents. He may grow to look like his father and to be like him in many ways, but in temperament he will be much more like his mother; he will be a philosopher, a poet and diplomat—quiet, reserved, very thoughtful, contemplative and practical, yet very warm hearted, loving and full of fun.

The sun and Jupiter, conjoined in his house of long journeys, indicate that he will travel a great deal, as might be expected, but the scholar rather than the aviator is denoted by his chart.

He is likely to be more earnest and penetrating than brilliant in his studies. In fact, as a child, no may be somewhat slow or literal in learning through desire to understand principles thoroughly. Yet marked originality and sparkling wit are also shown, and he is likely to be expressed through writings when he is older.

He will develop a splendid sense of rhythm and of the dramatic, and he certainly should be trained for artistic, literary work.

He was born with the sign of harmony, Libra, on the ascendant, and his ruling planet is Venus, called by the ancients the goddess of art, love and beauty, because of the observed influence of this planet.

It is chiefly the position of this planet, almost directly in midheaven when he was born, that shows his natural expression in this life to be through the artistic and cultural, rather than through the more active profession of his father.

The difference of temperament of father and son will be reconciled through the mother. All the world knows that his paternal heritage is a great one, but much good fortune will come to this boy through the maternal lineage also.

In this connection, when his progressed Jupiter forms the exact conjunction with his natal sun in March, 1937, there is likely to be an important event, probably affecting him through his grandfather.

Two tragic events are marked on his chart, one to occur when he is nine years old, the other at 15. A long and important journey is indicated for 1933. He is likely to achieve fame through his own efforts in 1963. The most favorable time for him to marry will be when sun and Venus are joined in the midheaven of his chart in 1965.

MOTHER OF 2 KILLED, 6 HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Isabel Cochran, 37, of 965 Tremont st., Roxbury, was killed, and six other persons, including her two children, were seriously hurt, by an automobile at Sterling and Warwick sts. last night.

The accident occurred when the swerving sedan raced down Sterling st. with Walter W. Elsey of Brookley rd., Jamaica Plain, at the wheel, and made a sharp turn attempting to get into Sterling st., at what witnesses say was a high rate of speed.

The car charged through the Cochran group, killing the mother outright, and felling the two boys, Donald, eight, and Frederick, Jr., nine, while the husband and father escaped untouched.

The sedan plunged ahead, lifted Police Officer Cain of the Roxbury Crossing station from his seat on the motorcycle, destroying the machine and throwing him to the street, then charged directly into a group standing in front of a grocery store.

The group included Mrs. Tillie Barman, 24, wife of the proprietor of the store; her nine-months-old baby girl, who was in the carriage; Miss Baidzar Janevesian, 24, of 94A Cabot st., Roxbury, and Frances Kernes, nine, of 49 Lincoln Park st., Roxbury. The sedan crashed into a stone wall directly in front of the store, hurling all to the street. Elsey was arrested by police on a charge of manslaughter.

Striking Teacher Takes Newton Job

Morton H. Wiggin, in whose behalf the Rockport High School pupils went on strike last month when he was dismissed as principal, last night was elected a Newton High School teacher by the school committee of that city.

Wiggin was discharged at Rockport when the selectmen decided for economy's sake to combine the position of superintendent with that of high school principal. He induced the pupils not to strike once, but they did so on the day before Memorial Day.

Lowell Captain Nashua Fire Victim

McDermott fell down a flight of stairs at the fire, but continued to lead his men.

OPENS GENERAL TICKET OFFICE FOR AIR LINES

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

With commercial air lines making regular daily runs to the north, west and south from Boston Municipal airport, the Consolidated Ticket Office opened its doors today to dispense flight ducats for all lines.

Seated at the desk in the office on the first floor of the Administration Building is Edward T. "Eddie" O'Toole, first operator of commercial airplanes on the Boston airport in 1923, and whose career so far has embraced every possible line of the flying business.

STILL SELLS AT PORT

While tickets on Colonial and Curtiss-Wright lines can still be purchased at their offices at the airport, New England and Western, Consolidated Airways and Eastern Air Express, when the latter resumes flying, would be more or less out of touch with the riding public.

This new service O'Toole is offering will clear up the situation and make life in general easier for every one.

O'Toole plans to enlarge the idea to include every air line of any importance operated in the United States, so that one may purchase tickets at the airport office here for the West Coast, Central or South America, or points in between.

When that end of the expansion is straightened out, the chief European lines will be represented, and Boston will have one of the few world-wide airplane ticket offices.

MAY DEVELOP

In addition to the air line business, Eddie hopes to act as agent for the commercial flying companies in and around Boston in the matter of special charter flights, short joy hops and student courses.

In other words, when the office is fully developed, O'Toole's slogan will be "If it's flying, call us up."

O'Toole operated several ships of his own at Boston from 1923 to 1925, and in that year organized the Boston Airport Corp. with Edward P. Warner and Daniel C. Sayer. He remained with that company until 1927 and then formed Associated Aircraft, running that show until Moth moved into Lowell and hired him as service manager and progress engineer.

GIRL ATTACKED BY PHANTOM KILLER

New York, June 24 (INS)—The true motives of the phantom killer of Queens were learned for the first time last night when the girl companion of one of his victims revealed the slayer as a sex-mad maniac.

After a week of silence on the slayer's actions, Miss Catherine May disclosed that the maniac had attacked her after shooting to death her escort, Joseph Mosynski, College Point grocer.

Her story was that the killer approached her and Mosynski as they were sitting in the rear seat of their automobile. She said the killer ordered the grocer to the front seat, shot him twice and then attacked her.

Her story tallies with that given to police by Betty Ring, companion of Noel Sowley, the second man slain. Miss Ring told police that only her pleas and a religious medal she was wearing saved her from attack.

While the sex motive was added to the investigation, the mysterious "3-X" renewed his letter writing activities.

He scribbled a death threat against Miss Margalo Gillmore, Theater Guild actress, and sent it to the New York Evening Journal.

The letter identified Miss Gillmore as the "blonde woman" mentioned in previous letters. It predicts she will be found dead in front of her home in an automobile "after 10 o'clock." No date was mentioned.

The first conclusion was that the letter was the work of a crank, but J. Vreeland Haring, handwriting expert, said the writing was the same as in the other letters.

Air Brothers' Plane Up for 13th Day

Chicago, June 24 (INS)—With their motor still droning steadily, John and Kenneth Hunter, endurance fliers of Sparta, Ill., today soared on in the 13th day of unbroken flight.

At 8:40 a. m. (C. D. T.) today the two brothers had been aloft for 304 hours over Sky Harbor airport.

The airplane and its crew were reported in good condition at the last refuling contact. The ship, City of Chicago, is refueled from a plane flown by two other Hunter brothers, Walter and Albert.

The fliers hope to shatter the endurance record of 420 hours achieved last year by the St. Louis Robin at St. Louis.

Buccaneers Shoot Ship's Passengers

Hongkong, June 24 (AP)—Fifty buccaneers wearing soldiers' uniforms overhauled a Chinese steamer today near Kongmoon, 50 miles south of Canton, shot several passengers, kidnaped 180 Chinese for ransom and took loot valued at 320,000.

The passengers were shot when about 20 of them jumped overboard and started swimming toward the shore. The pirates shot most of them, only a few escaping.

Frankfort, Ky., June 24—U. S. Senator John M. Robsion, Barbourville, Republican, will be unopposed in the Kentucky primary August 4 for renomination for the long and short terms. ## Two Pay With Lives for Payroll Slaying

Columbia, S. C., June 24 (AP)—Ray Coleman and Paul Johnson, convicted slayers of Earl Belue, Spartanburg textile mill payroll clerk, were electrocuted this morning. Coleman denied his guilt and Johnson warned others to beware of sin and pointed to himself as an example.

They were convicted of killing Belue on December 14, 1928, in an attempt to rob him of a $7000 pay roll.

Turk, 156, to Woo Owner of 8 Warships in Dry U. S.

Istanbul, Turkey, June 24 (AP)—A Turkish passport stating that the owner's birth year is 1774 and stamped with a six months' United States visa will carry toward New York this week Zaro Agha, who claims he is the oldest man in the world.

He has traveled in bygone centuries, having, he declares, fought with Napoleon in Egypt and in Greece during the war of 1825.

Now Zaro Agha has selected America for a twentieth century Odyssey because, as a fervid Moslem tootoller, he wants to pay his respects to the land where, as the Koran bids, wine is held wicked, his own country having backslid in this respect.

Zaro says America will be sure to appreciate the man who has been dry for 156 years. He hopes to get into the movies.

"Dozens of Americans have written me to come," he said in Kurdish today. "A rich American lady who owns eight battleships and four yachts has invited me to visit her. She sent me a dollar. I may decide to marry her."

Zaro made this observation in the presence of his eleventh Kurdish wife, whom he is leaving behind. She listened placidly and without comment. Zaro refused to divulge the possible twelfth Mrs. Zaro's name.

Mrs. Batchelder Not to Run for Congress

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Isn't it just too bad that with the World Court, prohibition, the tariff and the whereabouts of Garrett to worry us, we've got to stop everything and help Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh name their baby?

Seriously speaking, everybody is happy over the birth of an "eaglet" to this wonderful pair of American youngsters, and we will all be very curious to know just how the parents, and, of course, the grandparents solve this problem. If it were left to me I should call him "Charles Morrow Lindbergh," and I'll bet a cookie that's the way it will be settled. Anne's family name is a great one and the two families, I think, should both be honored in naming the "crown prince." I wonder what other readers of the Boston Evening American think about it.

MRS. H. Z. CHUMLEY.

Cites Speech on Bunker Hill Day

Editor Boston American:

While reading some of the old copies of the "Proceedings of the Bunker Hill Monument Association" I came upon the enclosed remarks of the president of the association, Winslow Warren, made in an address given at their annual meeting, June 17, 1898. It would seem as if the words were somewhat prophetic of the situation confronting the nation today, and therefore the item may be of interest to your readers. The address follows:

"Can we, who are many of us descendants of the men of the Revolution, or certainly imbued with their spirit, better show that we are true to their principles than by welcoming all signs of international good feeling, and by helping to speed the day when England and America may be in full accord?

"Not that we should forget the warning of Washington against such entangling alliances as would draw us inevitably into foreign controversies; but the cultivation of a spirit of amity and friendship with the nation nearest to us in blood and kindred and bound to us by the most enduring and holy associations, is far from inconsistent with the meaning of the Farewell Address, and is but a recognition that as we become a more powerful factor in the family of nations, we gravitate the more strongly toward a union of sympathy, at least, with that nation the more close to us in purpose and destiny.

"Together the two nations may work harmoniously for the spread of liberty and for the extension of the blessings of civilization and freedom; but if it shall prove an idle dream that the stars and stripes and the red cross of St. George shall kiss the heavens together, let it not be for brutal conquests, but rather to impose upon the world by our overwhelming joint power the righteousness and duty of peace."

PAUL J. WENNERS.
Dedham.

Urges League to Save Human Ears

Editor Boston American:

Since societies for the suppression of one thing or another are so much in vogue, I propose a new one, which shall differ radically from other "anti" ones in that its purpose be wholly civilized, namely, the prevention of permanent injury to the ear drums. For its corporate name I suggest "Anti-Loud Speaker League," a title which should meet with the hearty approval of quiet-loving people for whom existence is made one living hell by the radio pest.

If the obscene, explosive din is absolutely necessary to the cultural development of that congenitally tone-deaf Babbitt let him revel in it up to a reasonable hour, but after that hour it should be made a criminal offense to rob his neighbors of their sleep.

KILIAN FLECK.

Fitzgerald Rebuked for Attack On Allen, Butler

Editor Boston American:

The following letter has been sent to John F. Fitzgerald:

I was deeply shocked to read in the press the statement made by you that Gov. Allen and former Senator William M. Butler are "personally wet and politically dry. I am just as anxious as you to see the Democratic party successful in our State this Fall, but I do not feel that we need resort to falsehood and personal abuse to achieve victory.

I know, and so do you, that both Governor Allen and Ex-Senator Butler never touch liquor.

The trouble with you, my dear Doctor, is that you have been so closely identified with the liquor interests all your life that you cannot believe there are people who feel that nature never intended that men should make themselves lower than beasts with intoxicating liquor.

I commend you to a stricter adherence to the truth in your talks in defence of the liquor business that has been outlawed forever by the 18th Amendment.

WHITFIELD TUCK,
Dry Democratic candidate for nomination for governor.

Says Prohibition Will Never Solve Liquor Problem

Editor Boston American:

Your paper is worthy of appreciation by giving the opportunity to all who wish to voice their opinions on any vital issue.

While I fully believe that all forms of drunkenness are a miserable curse on humanity, and much more so for making the victim momentarily happy by helping him to escape from reality, but on awaking finding himself further away from his problems—with less power to combat.

Yet I believe that this present prohibition enforcement will not solve this or any other existing evil. As a matter of fact, it invites those who would never indulge otherwise.

By glancing all over the world and observing the operations through sheer force. Leaders using might instead of right, one can see inside such methods, the germ of their own destruction.

And then one must come to the real and only solution, and that is, by giving a special moral education in our younger generation at all schools, where real and lasting character should be moulded. Teachings that will reach the innermost soul of mankind and affect real human behavior. Also through special educational moving pictures and the like.

Instead of wasting energy, time and money on hopeless non-combatible effects, we should create and set in motion new, good, healthy causes and surely the fruit will bear its kind.

H. M. F.

HOUSEWIVES CAN LOWER FOOD BILLS BY USE OF SUGAR

Sugar Makes Inexpensive, Wholesome Foods More Appetizing

Although most foods rise in price at seasonal periods during the year, the price of sugar varies but little, and is always low. The cost of sugar to housewives in the United States is much lower than it is in any other country.

The value of sugar in reducing food bills is quickly apparent. Wholesome desserts, which can be inexpensively made, round out the simplest meal in a satisfying way. The same is true of jellies, jams and relishes. Sugar, of course, is one of the chief ingredients in these foods.

When sugar is used as a seasoning in cooking essential vegetables, their appetizing qualities are noticeably increased. Try a dash of sugar to a pinch of salt in cooking carrots, turnips, beans, tomatoes, and other vegetables—canned or fresh. The sugar blending with the salt and vegetable juices is delicious.

Stewed fruits become most inviting when sugar is added. And sugar sprinkled on breakfast cereals develops their flavor in a tasty-pleasing way.

The opportunity to buy ice cream and bakery products at the "store around the corner" should not be overlooked. These delicious, wholesome desserts are sold at a price within the reach of all. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

THE OLD PRATT HOUSE, CHELSEA

HIGH ON A HILLTOP, surrounded by what must have been farm lands, this house has stood since 1660 or possibly earlier. Built by Thomas Pratt, once a resident of Malden, the sturdy home has seen much of the vigorous existence and growth of Winnisimmet, now Chelsea.

First called the Way-Ireland farm, it later became known as the Pratt farm and included a goodly portion of Chelsea. The house is a splendid example of a staunch farmhouse, constructed to withstand hard usage; the slope of its roof is unusual; end walls under the shingles are of brick for extra warmth. It stands on a bluff which was difficult of approach for Indians. It has an air of confidence and self-dependence.

Here Increase Mather found protection from the hounding of Governor Andros, before escaping to England where he finally secured a new charter for the colony. Increase Mather was President of Harvard College and for 60 years minister of the North Church in Boston.

He is said to have made his escape by Snake river, which ran close to the foot of the steep hill on which this dwelling sets. Many tales there are which tell of the sympathy of the Pratt family actively expressed in assistance to outcasts from other colonies.

Guests were heartily welcomed and received excellent entertainment. The Pratt House has, through the centuries, the unusual distinction of having always been occupied by members of the family. Today a descendant is living within its walls and the farmhouse is in actual use, serving still the same family for which it was built.

The Pratts have served their country faithfully, especially in the Revolution, in which they took part.

The house stands at 481 Washington ave., Chelsea, reached by the Boston Elevated.

POLICE DRAGNETS OFTEN FAIL TO LAND 'FISH'

fish usually slips his head into a carelessly spread net by swimming in the wrong direction, his gills are caught and he remains a prisoner until somebody recognizes him as a delicacy in large demand elsewhere.

When Oliver E. Garrett decided that he didn't care to go to trial yesterday—and that decision was made long before yesterday—he was not without either the means or the brains to carry through an effective plan of disappearance.

Despite the fact he had given the well-known Pinkertons the Bronx cheer as early as Friday night, everybody in authority yesterday seemed enthusiastic about the chance of his pulling in a last-minute appearance. Herbert A. Wilson used to display a faith as implicit in the courage and goings of Mr. Garrett.

STILL THERE WAS HOPE

It was not until two hours and a half after his trial opened that it was officially decided that the well-known men about town had not overslept, was not being groomed at the barbers or taking in the early show at a movie.

Even then, after the four indictments against him were read, there was a note of eagerness and hope in the stentorian voice that summoned his presence in the court against the penalty of default.

Then the warrants were issued, with total official secrecy that Garrett was galloping for parts unknown without the jurisdiction of the court, blowing, taking it on the lam or on the loop, or just plain fleeing, whichever you prefer.

Then the police were notified. And that, mind you, was some 82 hours after "The Duck" had ducked the Pinkertons, then engaged in back-tracking in an attempt to pick up his trail.

The first time Garrett was seen by those officially charged with the responsibility of preventing the departure that took place was early Friday night.

At that hour Garrett entered a Massachusetts ave. house, parking his car behind him, as he was about to park his principal worry.

There isn't a doubt in that world that Garrett knew he was followed, knew that his entrance into that house was under the surveillance of a detective.

OVER THE HILLS

He probably went in the front door and out the back or over the roof. Nobody ever denied he was that smart!

A short time later the Pinkerton on watch saw a gentleman arrayed in the clothes of a garage mechanic come and drive Garrett's car away. Is it possible that was Garrett himself, having done an in-again-out-again Finnegan? Quite possible. Nobody saw him leave the house afterward, at any rate.

The next day the "Pinks" found his Franklin camp and his car, parked outside. And saw two women drive away. Is it possible that Garrett was one of the "women"? Quite possible.

As Garrett, however, he hasn't been reported by the detectives since Friday night. He had made the grade of the hill and was far away.

There is a report he was seen at a Providence hotel on Sunday morning. If so, he was wasting a lot of time putting distance between himself and those eager to have him on hand Monday.

There isn't a man on the Boston police force any smarter than Garrett, the Mechanic Falls, Me., boy, who gave up a milk route to become the czar of the liquor squad and, according to the allegations, start a milk route of his own as a sideline. He could easily disguise himself in evening clothes as a man-about-town he has crashed a lot of swell parties in his time. With a good whiz heard and a pack on his back there isn't a doubt in the world but he could evict Santa Claus from his own home on a trespass charge.

As to his friends, they are the sort of close-mouthed individuals who don't squawk. Many of them would gladly loan him the use of a clothes closet if the cops were coming and give him a pat on the back and a wad of bills after the gendarmes had left.

FRIENDS NOT TALKERS

There are still a lot of people who feel Garrett was made the goat for the gimmies of others and who believe that his trial, at a date later in the calendar, would result in a more beneficent attitude for the defendant. Some of them would a little rather than not give those in quest of his person what is known among the gentry as a bum steer.

One learns that the greatest man hunt in the history of the East is on, that the overworked "dragnet" has been flung far and wide for the capture of "His Nibbs." That his arrest is a matter of few hours.

One hopes that it is so, it is the demand of justice, and further than that, the public dislikes the spectacle of a man who promised so much delivering so little. Garrett promised to tell his story in the courts; he made that promise in a loud, hurt tone of voice. And added, in a whisper, "If, as and when they catch me."

As for precedent in the capture of fugitives, take the case of Christopher Cullen of Hingham, who shot a bride he didn't want.

WHERE CULLEN SLIPPED

Cullen shot his bride in January, 1929, and for 10 days police couldn't find a trace of him. The gumshoe dragnet out for Garrett was spread for a murderer and it caught no fish. Detectives went north, up into Vermont and New Hampshire.

But they caught Cullen, you say? No, they didn't catch him. He landed plump into their arms with a broken skull. He fell off a freight train down in Miami, Fla., while the cops were looking for him in Vermont. They took him to the hospital and one of the home towners, wintering in the Southland, read a description of the unfortunate accident victim, placed it beside a description of Cullen contained in a paper received from home, and sure enough they had him.

Take the three desperadoes who escaped a few months ago from Wetherafield prison. The same old dragnet was out and the fish swam right through it. If they hadn't become engaged in a shooting affray with Florida police who confronted them because they were driving a stolen car, they would probably now be engaged in fishing among the Florida Keys, with a search for them going on in Canada.

Take also the case of J. Philip Hatch, the Boston fruit broker, who disappeared after allegedly stealing $13,000. Hatch reached New Orleans, went by boat to Havana and might still be in Havana if he hadn't sent a radiogram to a Boston friend telling him of his whereabouts.

WHAT MIGHT HAPPEN.

Their own mistakes generally result in the capture of fugitives. Garrett can be depended upon to make far fewer mistakes than the average man and he is cuter than the average policeman or private detective.

Perhaps they will get him within a few hours. He might come out of the Boston Public Library with Grimm's Fairy Tales under his arm, stumble on the steps and break his arm. They'd have him then.

If they get him right away it will be because he has a change of heart and wants to be caught, or because of a rare bit of sleuthing. It is unlikely that he'll stick his head in the net through carelessness.

Epidemic of Colds Is Wiped Out in Test of Violet Rays

Ithaca, N. Y., June 24 (AP)—The usual winter epidemic of colds was wiped out among 300 young men at Cornell University this year by use of ultra-violet light.

These men were not completely freed of colds, but they escaped the ordinary "peak" when colds multiply.

The results of this ultra-violet treatment were made public today by Dr. Dean F. Smiley, in charge of student health.

Council Gets Plan to Mute Loud Radios

A fine of $20 will be imposed upon radio fans whose loudspeakers can be heard more than 50 feet from their homes provided the City Council adopts the ordinance introduced yesterday by Councilor Robert Gardiner Wilson, Jr., of Dorchester.

The measure was referred to the committee on ordinances, which will make its report to the council for final action in a few weeks.

The ordinance not only would prohibit fans from working their receivers at full force between 11 o'clock at night and 7 o'clock in the morning, but it would stop radio dealers from using high power on their speakers to attract attention to their shops even during the daytime.

BOUND TO AID ALL CRAFT IN EMERGENCY

The Coast Guard is duty-bound to go to the scene of an emergency at sea whether aid is requested or not, Congressman John J. Douglas informed the Boston American in a telegram from Washington today after conferring with Admiral Billard, commandant of the service.

The only reason the Coast Guard did not go to the scene of the Fairfax-Pinthis disaster is because it did not receive that night any information that a disaster occurred or that an emergency existed, he points out.

From the gist of garbled messages from the Fairfax, the Coast Guard suspected there was something wrong but upon direct inquiry to that vessel was assured everything was all right, Cong. Douglas states. His telegram follows:

"Commandant states Coast Guard actually is police of sea and is authorized to step in and render all aid it possibly can where and whenever an emergency exists. Coast Guard did not receive any word of Fairfax disaster. There was no SOS sent out by the Fairfax or Pinthis.

Coast Guard upon its headquarters orders sent officer to Boston. Facts disclose that there was Coast Guard ship within 15 or 20 miles of Fairfax at time of collision. Coast Guard ship had suspicion of something being wrong from the gist of garbled messages between Fairfax and its own line ship, Gloucester.

"Acting on this theory, Coast Guard inquired of Fairfax whether it needed help or was in distress. Answer of Fairfax was that everything was O. K. and it did not desire help of Coast Guard."

Co-eds Don Shorts Made of Silk and Just Above Knee

Huntington, W. Va., June 24 (AP)—Shorts have come to the Marshall College campus—but the fair young co-eds, not the men, are wearing them. What the men will do about it has not yet become evident.

The new outfits consist of dark blue silk shorts, reaching to a few inches above the knee, and low necked sport shirts. Whether socks are worn or not appears to be a matter of preference.

No official statement was forthcoming from college officials on the matter of co-eds in shorts, but the belief seemed to prevail that college authorities could not interfere.

Lieutenants Must Make Tour on Foot

The commissioner ordered the lieutenants to street duty two weeks ago.

FREE TWO FROM NAVAL PRISON

Portsmouth, N. H., June 24—A special clemency order from Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams freed two inmates today from the United States naval prison here.

They were Paul J. Lynch, 22, of Indianapolis and Thomas Martin, 27, of St. Louis. Lynch had served 14 months of a 3½-year sentence, while Martin had served four years of a 20-year sentence.

Lynch's release came as a reward for his turning in to prison officials a heavy revolver left by an officer in a car Lynch was to repair and service in the prison garage where he works.

The release of Martin came as the result of a personal interview with Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, judge-advocate general of the navy, when the admiral was inspecting the prison.

Martin told Admiral Sellers the prisoner's father had just died in St. Louis, leaving considerable money, life insurance policies and a business, with no one to administer them except a small boy.

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.

New York, June 24—Under a Panama thatch at the ringside of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight, sat Mr. James J. Tunney, formerly Gene, erstwhile heavyweight champion of the whole world. His torso is commencing to assume a comfortable contour.

His face is fattening up somewhat. He looks more like a prosperous young business man than an athlete. Well, no one can deny that he is prosperous.

The expression on Mr. Tunney's countenance as he sat there with Mrs. Tunney at his side, and contemplated the efforts of Messrs. Sharkey and Schmeling was most peculiar. He seemed at once amused and slightly bewildered.

I am not a mind reader, but I imagine Mr. Tunney was amused by the strange didoes of Herr Max Schmeling, and bewildered by the general ineptness of these men who were struggling for his discarded title.

Mr. Tunney, ever a stickler for accuracy, if nothing else, in his fighting days, must have been positively horrified by the inaccuracy of Sharkey, especially with that final left hand fling that crumpled Herr Max in the resin dust.

Tunney Would Have Blinded Schmeling

MR. TUNNEY COULD THREAD a needle with his left hand. He could split a hair with it. He was a sharpshooter par excellence. It didn't flip it, like Sharkey flips his left.

He shot it, did Mr. Tunney, with 190 pounds hung to it, and a snapper at the end. I say to you that Mr. Tunney would have blinded Herr Max in a couple of rounds, using only his left.

It would have been what the boys call a "soft touch" for Mr. Tunney. If Mr. Tunney has ever had any regrets over getting away from it all, I imagine it must have been this night that he sat out there under the lowering Bronx sky, peering at Sharkey and Schmeling.

Runyon Says Gene Could Defeat Sharkey

I SURELY CANNOT BE AC-cused of being mid-Victorian in going back to Mr. Tunney, for the memory of his prowess belongs to today. It is fresh in the minds of even our young children. He would have cut Schmeling to ribbons, and he would have knocked out Sharkey with a right-hand punch to the heart.

I can imagine Mr. Tunney deploring the decadence of the division over which he once was king. It wasn't as comfortable as this in those parlous times when the shrapnel punches of the mighty Dempsey were flying around a man's ears. I haven't suggested what Dempsey would have done to Sharkey or Schmeling when Dempsey was at his best. You saw what Sharkey did to Schmeling, and history will tell you what Dempsey did to Sharkey.

I used to think that Sharkey would have given Mr. Tunney a good tussle when both were at their peak, but I was wrong. No man is as rattle-headed as Sharkey could have coped with the ice-cold Mr. Tunney.

Mr. Tunney would have picked off Sharkey like a man picking blackberries. He could have gone into the ring with just a shoeshine and licked this kind.

In saying this, I mean no disparagement of Sharkey or Schmeling. I am merely rating Mr. Tunney as compared to them. I do not say that Mr. Tunney was the greatest heavyweight that ever lived, but in boxing skill, and everything else, I think he stood out over this pair like a tombstone over a grave.

Max Will Probably Lose Title to Sharkey

AS BETWEEN SHARKEY AND Schmeling, I think the latter has the best chance of improving. Sharkey reached his peak in the first few rounds against Dempsey, and he hasn't been as good a fighter since. But whether Schmeling will improve enough to beat Sharkey in September is another matter.

What this return match amounts to, as I see it, is merely a transfer by Schmeling for good and valuable consideration of the heavyweight title to Jack Sharkey. The latter is willing to pay well for it—let him have it.

I suppose something might be made of Schmeling's fortitude in giving Sharkey a return match so soon, but the gesture leaves me quite cold. Schmeling gets nearly $200,000 out of the milk fund match, and will get upwards of $150,000, and perhaps more, out of the return match.

In these tough times when better men are undergoing privation and hardship, and even risking death for a few dollars a day, I see nothing impressive in any man taking a bashed nose and a brace of black eyes for a fortune.

Sarazen Offers Strong Competition

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

In 1922, Gene Sarazen won the Open Golf Championship of the United States, beating Bobby Jones and John Black by one stroke.

Shortly after this his game fell apart and he played indifferent golf for years. Occasionally he showed a flash of his old brilliance and played fine golf at intervals. But he couldn't win any big tournaments outside of Florida.

"I was bad," said Sarazen to me one day, "but not quite as bad as a certain mediocre player I knew. After many disastrous failures from the tee he was preparing to play off to one of the longest holes on the courses and with surprise noted his caddie was handing him his medium iron to play the tee shot. "What do you want me to take that for?" he said. "Because you cannot hit the ball off the ground with any other," came the reply.

Several months ago, however, his game came back and he won the Agua Caliente Open purse of ten thousand dollars and followed it up with three other big tournaments.

Don't be surprised if this boy creates a lot of excitement in the British Open.

COLLEGE GIRLS IN TITLE PLAY

Josephine Cruickshank of the University of California will be favored to win the second girl's intercollegiate singles title when the tournament starts today at the Longwood Cricket Club, Chestnut Hill.

Midge Gladman of Southern California did not come East this season and thereby abandons the singles crown. Miss Gladman and Miss Cruickshank won the doubles title last spring, too. Miss Cruickshank is expected to pick a partner to play with her in defense of the doubles title.

Marjorie Sachs of Radcliffe, who played Midge Gladman in the singles final a year ago, will prove a serious threat to Miss Cruickshank this year and may upset the Californian.

Miss Cruikshank has been seeded number one and Miss Sachs number two.

Golfers to Pay Tribute to Veteran Tim Carr

By BILL GRIMES

One of the most esteemed characters ever identified with a public links course in this country is old Tim Carr, the Franklin Park veteran, who will celebrate his 80th birthday tomorrow.

Tim has been playing golf at the Franklin Park course since the inception of the game. He is known to every one of the thousands of golfers who play Franklin Park. Rain or shine, he gets out on his daily round. And, despite his age, and also the fact that he mows two or three lawns before playing, he is capable of setting a pace which only the more rugged can hold.

Bill Grimes

About a month ago, Shirley Thayer started a movement for a "Tim Carr Day" at the park. After getting the sanction of Mayor James M. Curley and Park Commissioner William P. Long, the "Tim Carr Day" committee, which is composed of a number of the "regulars" at the park, including Joe Howe, the superintendent; Eddie Callahan, the club professional; Ernest and Chester Grenier, Harry Fogg, John Sullivan, Jack Maloney, Charlie Lavie and Eddie Lowe, announced that an 18-hole handicap medal play tournament would be staged to celebrate Tim Carr's 80th birthday.

Although the entrance fee is only $1, many contributions have been received from friends of Tim Carr and it is expected that the veteran will be the recipient of a fine purse. Present plans call for the presentation of a bag of gold to Old Tim after the repast which will be in the Recreation Building at the conclusion of the tournament.

Hundreds Will Do Tim Carr Honor

Hundreds of Tim Carr's friends who have graduated from the "munie" to private courses will be back at Franklin Park tomorrow to pay tribute to the veteran. For the first time in a decade, the Strand A. A., which numbers among its members such well known former athletes as Chick McLaughlin, who captained the Harvard baseball team back in 1912, Eddie O'Brien, the old Crimson end, Dr. Frank Sexton, ex-Harvard coach, Dr. Bill Sheary, Notre Dame.

Frank Cavanaugh, Charlie Crowley and Jocko Conlin will resume their golf activities, as a body, for old Tim is an honorary member of their organization.

For years Tim Carr's stamina has been marveled at by those who have witnessed his feats at Franklin Park. He arrives at the first tee in the forenoon daily regardless of the weather conditions. He is as much at home playing in the rain or under a boiling sun, as under perfect conditions. He carries his own bag and is always the pacemaker in his foursome.

Eight years ago, on his 72d birthday, Tim Carr played 72 holes and since then he has time and again declared that "It will be 80 holes or bust, on my 80th birthday."

But his friends have recently talked him out of that idea.

Although it is not obligatory to enter the Tim Carr tournament in order to play Franklin Park tomorrow, few will pass up an opportunity to be identified with Tim Carr Day, and in all probability this will be the high water mark for all time one-day tournaments.

Tournament for P. L. A. Benefit

After the Tim Carr Day tournament tomorrow, Franklin Park will return to normalcy for a day and then another worthy event, an 18-hole open handicap medal play tournament, the receipts from which will go to defray the expenses of the Boston public links team to the United States championships at Jacksonville, Fla.

Due to conflict with other open tournaments, the Franklin Park tourney was twice postponed by Everett S. Litchfield, who is the Boston representative of the United States public links championships.

As there are no opens listed by the Massachusetts Golf Association for this week, the public links players' cause should benefit. The park is in wonderful condition. In fact, despite the enormous amount of daily traffic at Franklin Park, there are few private courses in better playing shape than Boston's lone public course.

The enlarging of the fourth and sixth greens are notable improvements. Since a motorcycle officer patrols the course, no more balls mysteriously disappear from the fairways, and Franklin Park offers an opportunity for as enjoyable a round of golf as any links.

Gate of Heaven to Play St. Mark's

Gate of Heaven C. C. of South Boston will play St. Mark's of Dorchester at Dorchester this evening and the Hyde Park Shamrocks on C. J. Lee playgrounds, South Boston, tomorrow evening, both games starting at 6:15.

Gate of Heaven has added several new faces to their lineup, including Bob Curran, all-scholastic first baseman, Jack McCarthy of Boston College, Tom Wilkinson of Fordham and are strong favorites to win top places in the Dorchester twilight league.

NEGRO DONE AS TITLE THREAT

Philadelphia, June 24 (AP)—George Godfrey, the Giant Negro, who last night fouled Primo Carnera, the Ambling Alp, in the fifth round, today lost his license as a boxer.

In addition to revoking his license permanently, the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission allowed him only $5000 for the bout. He was to have received $10,000 for the 10 rounds, but under the commission's rule this was cut to the purse basis of the number of rounds he fought.

The commission withdrew from Godfrey the status as a heavyweight contender, it having ruled some time ago that a heavyweight world's champion would not be recognized in Pennsylvania until the giant Negro had been eliminated by a battle in the ring.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

Philadelphia, June 24—Another fight, another foul; another crowd, another howl. Philadelphia awoke this morning with a dark brown conviction in its soul that last night had been one of those evenings that leave one vaguely aware that he had been born a sap and afterward went into a stupor.

To marshal the facts of the case briefly, and as painlessly as possible, Primo Carnera, the "Beeg Bogna," got the decision on a foul in the fifth round, George Godfrey got the official onus of having "deliberately struck a low punch," and Philadelphia got a $200,000 hangover—the morning-after reaction of those who indulge in low-grade entertainment.

Six months ago Phil Scott took a "plea" with Von Porat and was restrained. Three months later he filed another demurer with Jack Sharkey and the written was denied two weeks ago the heavyweight championship was bequeathed to Schmeling in lay proceedings upon the floor under the impact of Sharkey's foul; last night—

It was a balmy summer's evening and a goodly crowd was there. They came, some 25,000 of them, to see the great negro fight, so heralded battle of the Behemoths. They left, muttering darkly in a strange tongue, foreign even to the old fifth ward down along the river front. They had seen the man who had been training—at least in the writer's opinion—foul the man who had been losing, thus re-enacting the Schmeling-Sharkey situation and bringing a second battle of bewilderment before the public.

Another Fight, Another Foul, Another Crowd, Another Howl

Heigho! Another fight, another foul, another howl from the fans.

They still were howling when Carnera, having been stretched out in a neutral corner from a very low left to the body, arose from his chair of apparent agony after the count had been taken and made his way unaided to the dressing rooms. They still were howling on the down-stairs of the corners as an early hour this morning about the thousands of dollars they had spent to witness this same satisfactory but seemingly conventional ending. The referee, Tommy Reilly, was orating to the effect that he meant to report the illegal punch, Referee deliberate and Chairman Weiner, of the Boxing Commission, was exhorting all auditors with the tidings that the board would decide this morning whether all or any part of Godfrey's purse was to be taken away from him.

They can take lots of things away from Godfrey's purse and maybe something from Godfrey's prestige, but they will take nothing away from the impression that Carnera left with the crowd by his performance last night. It was a bruising, bone-crushing fight and the mastodon proved himself to be a real heavyweight and a definite menace to any and all who may stand between him and the championship. He won't winning this fight when it ended, but he had lived down a savage beating in the first two rounds and was beginning to come on, a performance that savored of potential greatness.

I never saw Godfrey fight as fiercely as he did in the first two heats. They said no man could stand up before him if he really wanted to let himself go. He let himself out as never before last night and Carnera, still was doggedly carrying on while the negro was beginning to puff and blow with the Old George, weighing 250 pounds yesterday afternoon, has known better condition. Carnera, down to 262, his lowest in America, was never as good before. This applies both to condition and fighting ability.

He needed the former to survive Godfrey's body attack; it required the latter to carry him along with the negro's early pace and bring

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

You do your part with the clubhead when you swing it well. it will do its work for you, and your part not only calls upon you to swing the club, instead of trying to hit with it, but to get those dogs into action at the right instant—and quickly. I have seen many a promising golfer who let his feet drag, and that's a golfing fault that can do as much damage as getting the clubhead drag. A dragging clubhead, which results from too pronounced action of pulling it down, hits a dead ball, since the ball will likely be scraped or shoved away, with wrists rigid and arms and shoulders paralyzed with muscle stiffness. It is all right to pull the clubhead away from the top if the "pull" works with you if as you do you are careful to maintain the maximum winding-up pressure you have obtained at the top of your back swing. That is, hold your body as it is as you start forward with the club—for just an instant, until the club gets away.

Braddock to Meet Monte at Fenway

James J. Braddock of New Jersey, conqueror of Tuffy Griffiths and Johnny Risko and now one of the world's outstanding heavyweights, signed to meet Joe Monte of Brockton in the 10 round main bout of the Arena A. C. to be held at Fenway Park next Wednesday.

Besides kayoing Griffiths and outboxing Risko, James J. ruined whatever aspirations Pete Latzo, Tommy Loughran and Jimmy Slattery had. He gave all three of them the hardest beatings they have ever received.

Braddock confidently expects to have Monte, but even if he does the bout is sure to be the hitfest witnessed in a Boston ring this year.

him out clear for the third and fourth rounds.

Carnera Hit With All Godfrey's Punches

Carnera, clipped full upon the snout with Godfrey's best punches and whanged deep into the bosom with Godfrey's body attack, must have been a tough man or he would not have lasted long enough to be fouled. His infighting, usually Old Gawge's racket, was no good in the third round. Old Gawge went back from there to blink perplexedly at this white mammoth who had been represented to him as a chump.

He showed a good left hand, he had plenty of savvy in many respects for a fighter who was supposed to be anybody's sap, I don't think any heavyweight can really hurt him. Anyhow, if he wasn't really hurt in the first two rounds last night, he will never be hurt again.

Godfrey went out with the first bell, winging with both hands to the body, and had Carnera on the run, forthwith. The latter landed only one right and a few straight lefts early in the rounds. The rest of the way he was doing a Ray Schalk. He was catching a great ball game—on the chin, on the bosom and, truth to tell, on the run.

Gawge was hitting a few of them right down the foul line, prompting Carnera to take an occasional appeal, which, in my opinion, proved to be without justification. Anyhow, the colored boy was riding well out in front in the first minute and a half of the ensuing round, his body punching and occasional left hook, up above, giving him enough leeway so that Carnera's rally in the closing minute just missed getting him a stand-off.

The third was about even, Godfrey starting with a blazing left hook, but taking a series of right crosses to the jaw. He came rushing back with punches down below, but Carnera straightened him out with two rights to the face and was timed beautifully by Godfrey's right upper cut at the bell. The fourth was uneventful, but what there was of it belonged to Godfrey.

Robins Tie Record for Hits in Inning

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 24—The Brooklyn Robins tied the National League record of consecutive hits for one inning, when they connected 10 times after two men were out in the eighth inning of the game with the Pirates. The record is held jointly by the Cubs and Cardinals, made against the Braves and Phillies on September 7, 1929, and June 12, 1922, respectively.

The Robins contin...d on in the seventh inning to equal the National League consecutive hit record of 12 safeties, made by the Cardinals against Boston Braves on September 17, 1930.

Diamond Pick-Ups

Danny MacFayden's victory over the Detroit Tigers was the first scored by the Sox over the enemy in the Hub this season. The Bengals grabbed the lone game played on their first visit here and opened this series by winning a double-header at Braves Field on the Sabbath. In Detroit, the rivals split a four-game engagement.

Earl Webb, Sox right fielder, narrowly escaped injury when he ran into the stands chasing a foul hit by Alexander in the seventh inning. "Don't get tongue tied, down there," yelled Wagner after the crash to his relief men in the bull pen, who watched the performance without giving a word of warning.

Young Gene Desautels of Southbridge and Holy Cross caught for the Tigers again, and gave another fine exhibition. He's the world's champion at flinging off his mask.

Charlie Sullivan has pitched in 20 games this year, but he didn't start a game until yesterday. If he is as good as he looked against the Sox he is the best of the hostile flingers, and his career as a relief man is at an end.

The trouble with many of the Red Sox at the bat is that they let too many good balls go by without offering at them. If they did a little more swinging they would probably be a lot better off. Getting hits without taking the bat off the shoulder just can't be done.

If the Sox can win two games this p. m. and the Athletics beat the White Sox, the natives will go into seventh place and be only two and a half games back of the fifth-place Tigers.

Irish Doctor Claims Hammer Record

Belfast, Ireland, June 24 (AP)—Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan, the Olympic hammer-throwing champion, in competition Sunday at Portstewart, Tipperary, threw the 56-pound weight, without follow, 28 ft. 5 in., which is claimed as a world's record, beating Mangan's 27 feet 9½ inches, made at Dublin in 1900.

The world's record for tossing the 56-pound weight "without follow" is listed in Spalding's Athletic guide. The world's record for distance with this missle is 46 feet 6 3-8 inches, made in 1911 by Matt McGrath, now Deputy Inspector McGrath of the New York police department.

TECH EIGHT IN FAST TRIAL

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 24 (US)—Skimming down the river against the tide, Navy's varsity crew rowed its way into the conversation of every boathouse along this segment of the Hudson yesterday, but it wasn't the sole subject of astonished comment.

M. I. T., hitherto dismissed by the experts as nothing more than three upper case members of the alphabet, was an unwelcome intruder.

The final time trials of Navy and M. I. T. yesterday revealed that both are to be serious subjects in the last reckonings on Thursday's varsity race.

The midshipmen ploughed the four miles against the current in 20:37, it was announced by Coach Richard A. Glendon. M. I. T. was caught unofficially in 19.40, rowing up stream and with the tide.

Until the Engineers' performance became known, Washington's 20:10 was the best known achievement in the workouts here. Consequently you could hear the cavemen buzz for miles around as the word was passed that M. I. T. had proved it could hold its pace for four miles.

"I always contended they were a good two-mile crew," said Buck Walsh, Navy plebe coach, "and now it seems that they can carry their speed over the full distance. It is a fine-looking boat and is going to be well up toward the front."

Navy's spurt down the course was treated with greater significance in the Columbia quarters, where the Glendon kinship has inculcated a strong Navy sentiment.

McCOY IN FINE SHAPE FOR BOUT

The crash of the flying tackle will be heard above the roar of the crowd Thursday night in the Garden, when Bob "Bibber" McCoy, great all-around athlete from Cambridge, makes his bid for the heavyweight wrestling championship of the world against Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg.

McCoy is in the best condition of his career. He weighed 219 pounds when he started his workout at Toland's Gymnasium with Dan Koloff, and will enter the ring Thursday night weighing 220 pounds, the lowest weight he has ever been known to be entered the wrestling game.

McCoy and Sonnenberg are scheduled to tear at each other's ears and probably will have light workouts tomorrow also.

The bout will be preceded by the longest and most brilliant preliminary card of the season. Seven bouts are scheduled, and among the popular matmen who will appear are Joe Malcewicz, Count Zbyszoff, Henri Diglane, and Renato Gardini. The main bout will go in the ring at near 9:30 as possible.

Campolo K. O.'s Ruggirello

RIGHT TO JAW ENDS BOUT IN THIRD

By JACK CONWAY

Vittorio Campolo continued his drive in the direction of a bout for the heavyweight championship of the world when he knocked out Salvatore Ruggirello of Italy in three rounds at a Boston Garden show at Braves Field.

Ruggirello went down seven times before Referee Joe O'Connor awarded the contest to Campolo.

Jack Conway

The Italian, however, gave the Argentine giant quite a scare before he passed out of the picture. He came near pinning a kayo on the South American champion.

The big thrill of the fight occurred in the first round. The rival heavyweights, living up to press agent notices, came out of their corners tossing right hand punches.

One of Campolo's rights crashed to Ruggirello's forehead and the Italian dropped to the canvas. The 2000 fans at the ringside figured it was all over but the shouting.

Before the referee could start a count, Ruggirello jumped to his feet. When he resumed fighting, he evidently had one thought in his mind. It was to plant a kayo sock on Campolo's chin.

Campolo Near K. O. in First Round

Campolo also was anxious to crash through with a right. Both men released their right dukes at the same time. Ruggirello's landed first and Campolo went down. He got up at once, but realized he was in there with a bird who could sock. Ruggirello let two more rights breeze. They landed high on the head and shook Campolo up.

There was also some hectic batting in the second round. The big fellows kept barraging with right hands. They acted as if it would be illegal to use a left jab.

Two of Campolo's rights crashed to the point of the jaw. Both times Ruggirello went down, and on each occasion he took the benefit of the count of nine.

Ruggirello was pretty well washed up when the third round opened. He was bleeding from the nose and this bothered him a great deal.

Campolo quickly got the range. A right to the jaw sent the Italian down for a count of six. He was then tipped over with a right high on the head and took the benefit of the count of four.

It was apparent Ruggirello was on his way out as he kept rubbing his nose and then looking at his blood soaked glove.

Vic cracked another right to the chin and Ruggirello took a nine count. One more right to the jaw and it was all over. Ruggirello was on his knees when Referee O'Connor counted 10.

Campolo weighed 229 pounds, Ruggirello 208.

Sharkey Impressed by Campolo's Punching Power

Jack Sharkey was in a front row seat and was impressed by Campolo's punching power.

Pat O'Flaherty of South Boston won from Eddie Callahan of Nashua, N. H., in six sessions.

Jack Dudley of Worcester carried too many guns for Elzear Rioux of Canada in their six-round tussle.

Joe Cabana of Providence disposed of Tiger Johnson of Boston in six chapters.

In the semifinal, put on after the main bout, Carlo Oldani of Argentina, Campolo's sparring partner, came through with an eight-round decision over Armand DeCarlos of Italy.

Campolo Adds to Conway's Batting Average

Vittorio Campolo, picked by Jack Conway to win the Battle of the Right Dukes that came through as predicted.

"It was the kind of bout which will help the boxing game in Boston," said Conway. The big fellows forget science and let the right hands breeze. Both hit the canvas in the first round. It was a stand up fight from then until the finish."

Conway's 1930 record follows:

PORT OF BOSTON NEWS

By CARL MORRISON

Readers who have followed Harleigh Schultz in his dramatic reviews will be interested in learn that this critic is spending his holiday vacation on a sea cruise with the United Fruit Co.

Harleigh left Saturday on one of the famous "vagabond cruises" of the company, and will write his experiences for this column. Besides his toothbrush and an extra towel, his sea-going equipment included a portable typewriter.

Many hundred New Englanders have made these romantic cruises, and they will doubtless appreciate his viewpoint, which is that of a landlubber.

Harleigh's first letter was mailed at Boston Lightship, through the courtesy of Wilfred O. White, of Kenvin & White, who happened to be on board to adjust some compass and binocular details. White went ashore with the pilot and mailed the first letter.

Schultz already has discovered that Capt. Matheris "is one of the greatest of skippers." Purser Bruce turned out to be a "real fellow." In fact, Harleigh makes this observation:

"I have found everybody connected with the United Fruit and its Great White Fleet to be keen, and great boosters for the Port of Boston."

The sea-going dramatic critic exhibits his sense of humor with:

"There are three rabbits aboard, consigned to Havana. Query: Are they adding another industry down in Cuba there?"

Harleigh casually remarked that radio rates were surprisingly cheap. This means that messages from the air may descend upon us at anytime, so watch this column for any news flashes from our sea correspondent.

Longshoremen Notes

We understand that William Trainor, who thinks nothing of hiking five miles daily to keep in practice, has a challenge to "Rubber Mullen and Eddie Anthony for the harbor championship in marathoning.

Joe Taft, captain of the Longshoremen's baseball team, is desirous to hearing from the challenge issued to the police ball team of Division 7.

Taft also includes in his defi an invitation to Engine Co. 40 of the Boston fire department. Fireman Tom Brennan is captain of the team, and Joe wants to go into a huddle about having a game.

Our "Diary of a Modern Mariner" today had this entry:

"Friends of Dick Player are requesting that his real name be published, as the use of a nickname has come to be substituted for that of his last name of Player. He has been called 'Dick Shuller' so often that strangers are addressing him in that manner, which is not so good, according to Dick. His hobby, by the way, is sail-boating with his pal, Jack."

Wooden Ships, Iron Men

Maj. J. D. Murray, on duty at headquarters of the Army Recruiting District of Boston, has recently found in an old trunk at home a copy of the old Bunker Hill Aurora and Boston Mirror. Under the heading of "Marine Intelligence" several items are listed. Much is made of the fact that the steam frigate Merrimack made Boston to New York in two days. In these pre-today days the navy department had received no news for three months of the cruising of Frigate Independence somewhere on the equator. This old newspaper was dated August 23, 1856.

Sea-Going Chronicle

Robert Little of Newbury has shipped as deck boy to England. Other seamen signing up yesterday for cruises to Texas included: George Foley of South Boston (Navy of Mexico); Benjamin F. Perry of Medford; Butler of Malden, Samuel McCauley of Charlestown and Lee of Peace of Lexington.

Today's Who's Who

The subject of today's Who's Who in Boston Harbor is Frederick Wilkie, member of the firm of Rice & Co., customs brokers.

Fred has been in the customs business for a dozen years and is a recognized expert, specializing on importing. He has a wide acquaintance in the harbor and is hailed everywhere as a "good scout."

Fred, who is single and lives in Roslindale, has the hobby Frederick Wilkie of commuting back and forth to Vermont, which is his native state. He is a member of the Foreign Commerce Club and a port booster.

Today's Safety Rule

"When ship is equipped with wire purchases, the ship shall furnish a sufficient number of chain stoppers to permit of safely shifting the derrick top ping-lift. There shall be at least one stopper to every hatch."

In Memoriam

News has been received here of the sudden death in California of Capt. Robert M. Tapley, well known in New England maritime circles. He sailed from Boston a month ago on the Montanan of the American-Hawaiian Line. The captain, who was born in Brooksville, Me., 67 years ago, was from an old sea-faring family, as his father was one of eight brothers who were all sea captains. Mrs. Tapley and a daughter are living in Portland, Me.

This popular old skipper was an energetic master. In the old sailing days he cruised from Cape Flattery to Melbourne, doing the 7890 miles in 55 days, then a record. His ship had the distinction of being the last sailing vessel to carry American cargo from an Atlantic port around Cape Horn, in

Big Outing Planned

Judging from early indications, there will be a big crowd at the Foreign Commerces Club outing at Pinewoods Inn next Saturday afternoon and evening. One firm executive telephoned for ten reservations for his staff. News that one of New England's best orchestras has been engaged for the dancing is attracting the younger element in the harbor. The outing will be held, rain or shine, as every event except baseball can be held indoors in the big pavilions.

Shipping Good

Boston members of the A. M. M. A. report that shipping conditions are relatively good, for there are only eight or nine licensed officers out of work. The active association membership here is 450. Last November the idle list totaled 28.

Possibility of members of the Everett police and fire departments securing an increase in salary of $100 went aglimmering last night when the order was tabled during the meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

An attempt to refer it to next year failed after Mayor Michael C O'Neil said he would veto the measure.

FIGHT PERMIT FOR BUS LINE IN NAHANT

Granting of a license to the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. for the operation of busses from Lynn to Nahant was vigorously opposed at a hearing before the Public Utilities Commission.

The Eastern Co., at a previous hearing stated that it wanted to be in the position to operate busses in the event that the present transportation system broke down entirely.

The Nahant & Lynn Co., since the order issued by the commission condemning its trestle bridge as unsafe, has been obliged to use both trolley and bus.

Charles F. Flynn, counsel for the Mart Bus Co., said that the selection of Nahant, after the impairment of the bridge, recommended that the Eastern be given a license to operate busses on a 15-cent fare basis.

This was despite the offer of his company to furnish the transportation for 10 cents, and a special seven and one-half cent fare for school children, he declared.

He claimed that the recommendation was unfair both to his company and the Nahant company.

M. C. Lewis, counsel for the latter concern, claimed there is no necessity for additional transportation in Nahant. The residents get the benefit of 24 round trips within a period of 18 hours and have the opportunity of going back and forth in automobiles of neighbors, he said.

What Do You Know About That?

THIS MAN SHOVELS SNOW IN SUMMERTIME

THE TEMPERATURE AT Commonwealth Pier was 18 degrees below zero this morning and Frank A. Lee was shoveling snow.

Sounds ridiculous doesn't it? But it's a positive fact.

A reporter looked at the thermometer to make certain, hardly able to believe that it had grown so cold in so short a time.

But such a sight on a morning like this ought to be sufficient to draw a crowd. But it didn't. There wasn't a soul around and Frank was clearing the snow just as fast as it was humanly possible to do so.

It really seemed as though the more he shoveled the snow fell harder.

FROM PIPES

You have probably guessed it. All on a way going on inside the cold storage vault of the Commonwealth Ice and Storage Co. at the Fish Pier in South Boston.

That was the reason why there was no crowd. The reason the snow fell so hard was because every time that Frank pushed his shovel over the floor it simply rattled the flakes off of the freezing pipes over his head.

The only summer heat that Frank Lee feels is during the evening and night following a hot day. In the summertime he keeps the fish fresh for shipment from the Boston Fish Pier to points as far away as California and far into the northwestern part of the United States.

PILES FISH

It is Frank's duty to pile the fish and keep track of the cod, mackerel and other kinds as they are delivered at the pier from the boats.

Day in and day out Frank lives in the climate of the frozen North and seems to enjoy it. For 15 years he has been doing this and when asked how he likes his job his answer is always, Oh you get used to it."

Frank says that he never has a cold and that he does not mind coming from the Arctic temperatures into the warm summertime climate of Boston.

MIDNIGHT RUM VISITS LED TO THREATS

Midnight visits of thirsty liquor customers raised such havoc with her mental peace that she threatened her husband with raids and deportation if the practice did not cease, Mrs. Barbara F. Vernon of Medford told Judge Arthur E. Beane in Middlesex Probate Court yesterday.

In her divorce suit she charges Francis C. Vernon with cruel and abusive treatment on divers occasions. In a cross action Vernon alleges infidelity, naming William Oesting, correspondent.

Mrs. Vernon also accused her husband of striking her and mistreating her on numerous occasions before she left him, last December. She denied any improper relations with William Oesting, named by her husband, and said he was "a good friend, who always conducted himself as a gentleman."

DENIES MISTREATMENT

Under cross-examination by James Meagher, counsel for her husband, she denied mistreating their five-year-old son, and also defiantly admitted going about with Oesting after leaving her husband. She insisted, however, there was no wrongdoing.

Previous to Mrs. Vernon's testimony, which occupied the greater part of the day's hearing, Miss Gertrude Powell admitted on the stand to signing an affidavit, charging improper relations between Mrs. Vernon and Oesting in a Buick coupe, in which she was a passenger in the rumble seat.

TRIP TO CANADA

She also testified Mrs. Vernon told her she had roomed with Oesting on a trip which the two took to Canada, accompanied by another woman. Under questioning by John F. Daly, counsel for Mrs. Vernon, she admitted she had not seen the actual improper relations, and when pressed agreed it was probably her imagination.

Laura L. O'Brien of Newton was called to the stand and told of the trip to Canada. She said she and Mrs. Vernon had always roomed together and Oesting had had a separate room. She denied any improper relations between the two at any time on the trip.

The hearing will be resumed Friday at 10 a. m.

Was Acting Mayor, but Not a Citizen

New Bedford, June 23—T. Harry Margeson, former president of the board of aldermen, at various periods a member of the common council and who has also served as acting mayor, is not a citizen, a belated discovery reveals, and the registrars of voters have called a special meeting for tomorrow to show cause why his name should not be dropped from the voting list.

William Margeson, father of the former acting mayor, became naturalized in Taunton, 1812. Son became a voter a month later, when he gave his age as 23. Now it develops that only minors can take advantage of their parent's application for citizenship, and the son must take out papers in his own name.

HOOVER'S LAW ENFORCEMENT BOARD HIT

Washington, June 24 (U.S.)—Another problem squall appeared on the Senate horizon yesterday when the appropriations committee reported the deficiency bill carrying $50,000 for the Wickersham commission to make an exclusive study of the dry law.

This slap at President Hoover's commission was immediately challenged by Senator Jones (R.) of Washington, who proposed an amendment giving the committee $250,000 to carry out its general inquiry into all phases of law observance and enforcement.

The Jones amendment assured a lengthy debate when the bill comes up for Senate action late this week. As the House made no appropriation for the commission, a protracted conference between the two Houses would delay adjournment of Congress.

With both the anti-prohibitionists and the "drys" loosing their shafts at the Wickersham commission, it appeared likely that the $50,000 recommended by the appropriations committee will be carried.

The administration, however, may take up the issue and try to appropriate the $250,000 which the commission desires.

FILENE'S SHOWS BYRD EXHIBIT

An Antarctic and aviation exhibit featuring the Byrd Antarctic expedition is being held on the fourth floor of the Franklin Hawley building at Filene's, and will continue for two weeks.

The personnel of the expedition, the air and sea fleets, huge ice barriers and intimate glimpses of life at the Byrd base in Little America are shown in a collection of photographs, many of them enlarged to life size.

In addition to the Byrd photographs, the development of aviation, dating from the first aviation show in London in 1862, and the early ventures of the Wright brothers' Kittyhawk are traced in a pictorial review. A five-foot rotary globe indicates the routes of the outstanding flights of the last 20 years.

Drawings of famous airmen and paintings of notable events in the history of aviation are also included in the exhibit, for which no admission fee is charged.

New Break Found in Col. Shaw's Sword

Pedestrians passing Shaw Memorial monument on Beacon st. in front of the State House yesterday discovered that the sword held in the right hand of the figure of Colonel Robert Gould Shaw was broken off, the third time in as many years.

The memorial is a bas relief and the figure of Colonel Shaw is in the center, standing out in high relief. The break in the sword was at the fingers. Park department officials immediately started an investigation to decide whether it had been damaged by vandals or if it was merely the result of a flaw in the metal.

The sword was broken on May 26, 1927, and again on January 8, 1928, when vandals were said to have twisted it.

Salem Youth Hurt in Truck-Cycle Crash

Maurice E. White, 17, of Norman st., Salem, was seriously injured when the motorcycle on which he was riding was in collision with a truck owned and operated by George Clemenzi, a contractor, of Elliot st., Beverly, last night, on Liberty Hill ave., Salem.

At Salem Hospital, White was found to be suffering from internal injuries, a broken left arm, possible fracture of the right leg and abrasions and lacerations of the body.

Swarms of Hornets Douse Buoy Lights

An investigation by the lighthouse bureau into the reason the lights on the gas and whistling buoys off Cape Ann and Nauset have gone out of commission has resulted in the discovery that hordes of hornets, driven four to six miles offshore, had flown inside the lanterns protecting the lights and had smothered the flames by sheer force of numbers.

Many of the insects perished in the invasion. They worked their way down through the ventilator tops and in a trice the acetylene lights were put out. A hatful of the hornets were removed from each of the beacons by lighthouse employes.

At Rimarock buoy, off Scituate, like the others located several miles from land, hornets also were found inside the lantern, at least 150 being removed, but they had not succeeded in extinguishing the light.

Trial Opens for Arcturus' Skipper

Providence, June 24—Capt. Jose Domingues of New Bedford, master of the steamer Arcturus which became stranded in mid-ocean several months ago, was placed on trial before Capts. Robert E. Clarke and Richard F. Bailey, United States steamboat inspectors, sitting as a board of inquiry yesterday, as a result of charges made.

The Arcturus, which sailed from New Bedford with passengers, ran short of coal and was leaking when another ship picked her up and towed her into St. Vincent, Cape Verde Islands, where the crew became stranded.

Capt. Domingues is charged with misconduct in the handling of his ship.

STEPDAUGHTERS of WAR

by HELEN ZENNA SMITH

Smithy Gets News From Sister

HOW THE STORY STARTS

When Helen Smith, nicknamed "Smithy," first joined the ambulance corps and went to France her nerves were shattered by the terrible sights of wounded soldiers, but she soon became hardened. Smithy shares a room with five girls, among them Tosh, rough, good-natured idol of the convoy. General conditions are bad enough, but a tyrannical commandant, whom Tosh christened "Mrs. Itch," adds to the hardships. A sick girl is forced to drive in the rain. Smithy shows Preston, one of the newcomers, the hospital location. Preston is almost in hysterics.

CHAPTER 12

The strange handwriting belongs to Roy Evans-Mawnington. I know Roy well, but he has never written to me before. Good old Roy, jolly decent of him to write. He was at Oxford when I came out, nice boy, nice, clean, blue-eyed, ordinary English public school boy. Not particularly intelligent or brainy, but just nice.

A line to let me know he expects to be out in France by the time this reaches me—thought I'd be interested—admired the photograph of me in uniform in mother's drawing room and if I have a Stepney—what sort of a time am I having—lots of admirers?

Don't let us one-pippers down by getting mixed up with a brass hat, will I—? Writing to Trix, too, but rather hear from me really.

I look jolly smart in uniform, suits me rather, don't forget that spare photograph, he has a fairly decent one of himself taken in khaki the day he got his one pip up if I would like it—jolly glad he's going out, top-hole to be really in it, sick of slacking at home and drilling and route marching—

Poor Roy.

Enemy in Midst

Appalling Situation

Aunt Helen's contribution is almost a replica of mother's Committees—committees—committees—recruiting posters—don't forget to tell the Commandant she was at school with her sister—Adelaide Carrutherstown and noble example to all girls my age she thinks it her duty to tell me she's made a will in my favor—(As she will probably outlive me by half a century this does not thrill me as it ought. The best description of Aunt Helen is that no one has ever dared to call her Nellie—people of that kind do not die young)—what do I think? Annie Orpen is sure Fraulein at school is a spy.

When they played God Save the King the other day, they all watched Paulette and she was seconds late standing to attention. Quite, quite reluctant, so Annie says. Isn't it appalling to have the enemy in our midst in this barefaced fashion—So hard to get butter—housekeeping dreadful trial—altogether the war a dreadful calamity—send if I want anything—by the way, my mother tells her Trix described someone as a "dam washout in her last letter home.

She is shocked beyond words—hope I will never forget myself, and use such strong, vulgar epithets, it is for women in France to have a womanly, refining, softening effect on the troops, after all a refining influence means a great deal in wartime, doesn't it—she is writing a strong protest to Trix and is mine.

I have kept the best wine last I fear open Trix's letter with real anticipation. A fat six-pence letter in Trix's tiny handwriting. News, news, news. Dear Trix. She and I have always been together until now. There is 18 months' difference between our ages, but we might be twins, we are so inseparable.

We Survive

Says Sister Trix

We have every taste in common, we have attended the same schools, we know each other's most intimate secrets, we go everywhere together. If she had not been too young we would have come here together. I am thankful for that 18 months' difference in our ages. Had Commandant treated Trix as she treats me I should have felt myself go the first few days, of that I am certain.

Dear Sis,

If you write me a cheery, Brown-Haired-Lass-in-Khaki-Doing-Her-Bit-For-Her-Country letter again, I'll go mad and bite someone. I get quite enough of that muck from home. We have a lorry driver here who was in your shop about four months ago—Nipper Dale.

Close Race in News Tip Awards

SECOND WEEK PRIZES ARE ANNOUNCED

Hub Man First—Dorchester Girls Get Second and Third Places

The second week of the Boston Evening American's news tip contest developed some real competition, resulting in the selection of Louis Zagama, 5 Decatur st., Boston, as winner of the first award of $25.

He had no easy time of it, but was pressed hard for honors by a Dorchester young lady, who has asked that her name be withheld. She gets the second prize of $15. Third honors go to 12-year-old Eleanor Goodwin, 1400 Dorchester ave., Dorchester, who receives the $10 award.

That isn't all the money that was given either. Twenty-five other Bostonians persons received $2 each for tips on stories which didn't quite measure up to the importance of the first three. Their names are given below.

First of all, you probably want to know why the three major prize winners were selected.

TIP ON BANDIT

Louis Zagami gave the very FIRST tip of the activities of the boy bandit, who climaxed his weekend escapades by breaking out of the City prison. Because of the speed with which he worked, Zagami told the American about the holdup of a Dover st. fish shop proprietor within two minutes after it happened.

His telephone call to the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000 brought a reporter and photographer to the scene even before the police of Station 5 knew about the affair. Thanks to Mr. Zagami, this paper was the only afternoon paper in the city to print a picture of the youthful thug in the hands of the police.

SPEED—That is the first essential in a prospective prize winner. Only the first one who gives the news on any particular story is eligible for a prize.

The second tip on the same story doesn't count. So you must hurry with that telephone call to Liberty 4000. Even if you have been trying for some time unsuccessfully, your chance is just as good as anyone else's.

CALL AGAIN

And another thing! If you call with a tip and later get more information on the same story, don't be bashful. Call back the SECOND time with your added information. A new fact may make even a good story BETTER.

News doesn't pick any particular place to happen. It is everywhere. In your home, on the street, any place where people gather. If you are a normal person and an event interests you the chances are that it is NEWS.

If you see an interesting or unusual person or thing that might

What-It-Is-Is-It? Why, a Fish of Course

WHY IS IT A FISH? Because it swims and was caught on a hook. Capt. Ronald J. Walter and his son, Walter J., of Oak Island caught it off Baker's island after a ten-mile fight. It weighs 562 pounds, measures 4 feet in length and 5 feet, 3 inches from fin to fin. It appears to be the grandfather of all sea mysteries and nobody has been found yet who has the slightest idea what it is. (Staff photo.)

Hooks Strange Creature and Decides It Is a Fish

It's a fish because it swims, but beyond that Capt. Ronald J. Walters of Oak Island, Revere, veteran of 50 years' fishing, doesn't know what it is.

Capt. Walters, cousin of Capt Angus Walters of the fisherman racer Bluenose, caught the strange creature of the deep four and a half miles southeast by south of Baker's Island, off Beverly.

"It looks more like a barn door than anything else," he said, "with the head of a bulldog, and it weighs 562 pounds.

"I caught him on a hand line and he was a spry customer. But I don't know what he is and I never saw his like. He's all wrong and he even swims wrong—with his sharp edge up and down like a knife.

"He's 5 feet 3 inches long, 4 feet 2 inches wide and 14½ inches thick. He's the darnedest looking critter I've seen in 50 years of fishing. I've shown him to other experienced fishermen and they've never seen his beat.

"He was in 20 fathoms of water when I hooked him and he fought like a devil."

Outdoor Movies

Outdoor movies were enjoyed last night at the Russell E. Hoyt field, Cambridge, under the auspices of Stephen H. Mahoney, superintendent of recreation. The next showing will be held Thursday evening at Raymond st., Cambridge.

BOY BANDIT, 17, ELUDES COPS

With the whereabouts of Victor Stanwhite, 17, as much of a mystery as that of Oliver B. Garrett, Police Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman today led a squad of high officials of the department on an inspection of the city prison in search of the boy escape artist.

Superintendent Michael H. Crowley was on hand to conduct the tour but the commissioner went along as an observer. On the investigating board are Deputy Superintendents Goode and Allen and Capt. Richard Fitzgerald.

Lieut. William Allen, who was in charge of the outgoing shift when Stanwhite made his escape, is under suspension pending the outcome of the investigation.

TERCENTENARY GROUPS SPLIT OVER PARADE

Plan to Have New York Firm Manage Project May Cause Abandonment

The huge tercentenary parade of historical floats planned for August 15 stood today in grave danger of abandonment as a result of a war raging over the plan sponsored by the Boston Tercentenary Committee to have a New York firm undertake the management of the project.

Today the committee will discuss the advisability of giving up the plans for the elaborate procession and will try to restore order from the chaos brought about by a complete lack of co-ordination between the various organizations concerned.

PRIVATE COLLECTION

It was brought out that a private organization which is sponsoring the parade has already collected $4,000 from the sale of floats to industries and manufacturers at $200 each and that it has made tentative sales of 45 other floats in the same line.

Of these collections, only 25 per cent will be paid over to the tercentenary committee and the remaining 75 per cent is to be retained by the private concern for construction of the floats.

Chairman John F. Fitzgerald and Edward P. Barry of the Tercentenary committee declared yesterday that it is virtually impossible to collect further funds from the 67 firms which intend to pay $2000 apiece for floats, and pointed out that what should be the committee's principal source of revenue is closed to them.

FUNDS LACKING

With regard to other funds it was announced yesterday that only $18,000 has been contributed aside from the city appropriation, and that $18,000 in the state funds promised the Maritime Association of the Chamber of Commerce for the harbor program will not be forthcoming.

"They have played a dirty trick on us," said Chairman Fitzgerald yesterday, pointing out that, although he had persuaded Gov. Allen to recommend an additional appropriation, the bill has been revised by the Legislature until it now contains a prohibition against paying Boston any share whatever.

Today's discussion of the advisability of continuing plans for the August parade will be the first step in an effort to straighten out the tangle in which the Boston tercentenary has been thrown through a lack of co-ordination of activities of state committees and organizations.

MODELS HEROES FOR DINNER

The dinner at the Hotel Statler celebrating the 20th anniversary of the Legion of Valor and given by Mayor James M. Curley to the Massachusetts Chapter tomorrow will be graced by statuettes, modelled by Anna Coleman Ladd. She will use five figures symbolic of the types of manhood she encountered in her war experiences. In the center of the table she will place "Winged Youth," a model of a young man whose arms are folded wings and who shows the grim traces of war.

"The Avatar," memorial to Lieut. Samuel P. Mandell, who was killed in action in 1918, and who was son of the former editor of the Boston Transcript, will stand at the left of "Winged Youth." The figure entitled "Oddsonends," meaning "scarecrow," depicts the horrors of war, as she saw them, ragged and starved.

The glory of youth, triumphant over suffering and death, with torn shirt and in his hands has separated, stands forth in the "Doughboy."

Mrs. Ladd, in the wife of Dr. Maynard Ladd, who took charge of 20,000 children in the bombarded cities of Lorraine. She founded the American Red Cross Studio for portrait-masks for the disfigured soldiers at Paris in 1917.

'DOPE KISS GIRL' GOES FREE

After a trembling girl had heard federal officials argue over her fate before Judge Lowell in U. S. district court today, she gratefully promised the judge to try to "go straight" when he decided to give her another chance.

Mrs. Edith Barlow of Roxbury, called the "dope kiss girl" by federal officials, because she was caught trying to pass a tube containing heroin from her lips to those of Edward Shea at State prison, would have gone to jail for six months if Asst. U. S. Atty. Elihu Stone had had his way.

Opposing Stone, Probation Officer Richard B. McSweeney argued for a suspended sentence, which would give the defendant another chance. He declared the case rightfully belonged in the State courts.

Stone said the girl had been in federal court before and argued she would benefit by a term at Greenfield.

Judge Lowell, after saying he appreciated the efforts of Warden Hoggett "to stamp out dope at State prison," imposed a sentence of two years, but suspended it, warning the girl she would have to serve it if arrested again.

"Have you got the will to go straight? Will you try?" he asked her.

"Yes, your honor, I'll go straight, I'll try," she said, and thanked him.

MAYOR CURLEY MOVES TO END BYRD ROW

Will Extend Olive Branch to Allen in Plans for Big Reception

Move to mend the threatened breach arising between State and city over the reception to Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd was started by Mayor Curley as soon as he arrived at his office today.

Mayor Curley announced that he would confer with Governor Allen to extend the olive branch to smooth over difficulties that have arisen due to the absence of both officials.

"Rear Admiral Byrd is a Boston man coming here as the guest of the City of Boston and that fact seems to have been lost sight of," Mayor Curley stated.

Mayor Curley announced he would go to South Station to meet Rear Admiral Byrd, accompanied by Rear Admiral Louis McCoy Nulton, commander of the First Naval District, and Brig.-Gen. M. L. Walker, commander of the First Corps Area.

An invitation will be extended to Governor Allen to accompany him, Mayor Curley stated.

Friction was started when city officials became suspicious of the plans being made to receive Byrd by State officials yesterday. Neither Governor Allen nor Mayor Curley were in the city.

Announcement by John D. Wright, secretary to the Governor, that there would be a big demonstration in front of the State House was the cause.

HIRE ALEPPO BAND

He stated that the Aleppo Temple Shrine Band had been secured to provide a concert and that amplifiers would be installed so that the crowds on the State House grounds could hear the governor's message and the explorer's response.

Celebration officials at City Hall complained that the Byrd parade could stop in front of the State House but a moment while en route from the South Station to the Common for the official exercises.

Under the program drawn up by Director of Public Celebrations J. Philip O'Connell, the special car bearing Admiral Byrd and his party of 10 New Englanders who accompanied him on his last expedition, will arrive from New York at the South Station at 1:55 o'clock Friday afternoon, with Mrs. Byrd.

PARKINGS ON COMMON

The distinguished guest and his party will be escorted to the Common by the city officials. From the South Station the Byrd parade will pass along Federal, Milk, Congress, State, Court, Tremont, Park, Beacon and Charles sts. to the Common, stopping for a brief period in front of the State House to permit the governor to present the state medallion to the noted explorer, according to the municipal program.

COOK BROTHERS, ALONZO AND WASHINGTON, BURY HATCHET

WILL FIGHT ON SAME SIDE IN ELECTION

Ex-Governor's Councilor to Run, but He Hasn't Decided for What

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Washington Cook, brother of Alonzo, State auditor and "bad boy" of the Republican party, are friends.

Stories that the former ill feeling between the brothers, which culminated in a fist fight before 100 spectators in front of the Boston City Club, several years ago, had broken out again and that Washington was all primed to "do a job" on Alonzo are emphatically denied by the former.

"That row is all ancient history," Washington declared. "There's nothing to these stories that I intend to enter the Republican primary against my brother."

And Washington, with brotherly loyalty, insists that the scramble for Alonzo's seat this fall will be no more successful than other frenzied attempts made regularly every election by the machine to oust Alonzo, since he captured the office 15 years ago.

SURPRISED EVERYBODY

Washington entered the political arena back in 1924, when he defeated William Ollendorff for renomination to the Governor's Council, to the surprise of everybody, including himself.

Encouraged by this victory and friends he made another try two years later against Joseph Walsh for the U. S. Senatorial seat in 1926, as a Democrat, and for mayor of Lynn in 1929 against John F. Bellam of the Workers Party, Wallace B. Ryder Republican, Alfred Ernest Lewis of the Socialist party and David I. Walsh Democrat.

Washington finished a poor third just nosing Lewis out for the booby prize, Bellam getting 3,267 votes, Butler, 469,988; Cook 4,736; Lewis, 4,730; and Walsh, 525,303.

STILL IN POLITICS

But Washington isn't through with politics. Not by a long shot. Just been taking a vacation looking over the country as far as California and getting some points.

"You just watch my smoke this election," he advised. "I'm going in again."

"What's it to be this time, Washington," he was asked.

"I'll let you know in a week or so," he replied. "The gubernatorial and senatorial fights are the things to keep your eye on this year. Those fellows who are running as 'drys' are not fooling the people. It's lip service, nothing else. Wait a little while and I'll have something to tell you. I'm making a trip now, but will be back in a week or so."

Lessons in Up-to-Date Life Saving for Boston

Pity the swimmer with a wig, if the hair-carrying rescue is tried. We show you a number of the types of rescue used in the series. Capt. John Wallace and Henry Larchez are in charge of the life saving school. (International Newsreel photo.)

2 MORE WOMEN IN ATTACK CASE

Two more women reported to the police today that they had been attacked by William Brown of Parson st., Waltham, one of three men held in connection with an assault on Miss Catherine M. Haggerty of Concord.

The two complainants were Miss Esther Fitzgerald of Charles st., Waltham, and Miss Irene Gallant, 20 of Bacon st. that city.

According to their story Brown chased Miss Gallant into Mrs. Fitzgerald's home at midnight Sunday and attempted to choke her. Mrs. Fitzgerald went to her rescue and was herself beaten, she claims.

According to Mrs. Fitzgerald, Brown, who was under the influence of liquor, escaped with two other men in an automobile.

A short time later the attack on Miss Haggerty took place on Lincoln Road. Leonard J. Hennessey of Lake st. and Charles Delaney of Francis st., both of Waltham, were held in $5000 each pending action on the charge.

Miss Fitzgerald said Brown struck her in the face and chest and bruised her left arm, and that she was treated by Dr. Conrad Bel-

So that as many as possible might be able to know what to do in case of a drowning accident the officials of the American Red Cross are opening their first outdoor life saving school, at the Dedham Bath House, Dedham.

Capt. John Wallace and Henry Larches have been appointed to take charge of the new life saving school which will be continued in all parts of Boston during the summer months, from week to week.

This instruction is open free to all persons whether they be men women or children, and includes instruction on how to rescue a person, how to take one from the water, and how to revive a person after rescue.

SILVERMAN AND EXPERT CLASH ON LIGHT RATE

Rebates Put in Edison Surplus Account Arouses the City's Counsel to Heated Passage

A heated argument between Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman, representing Boston in a demand for a cut in Edison rates, and the company's statistical expert, L. S. Goodman, today enlivened a continued hearing before the public utilities commission.

Silverman, noting a substantial increase in the estimate for federal taxes asked if it were true the company proved overestimates and rebates in the surplus account.

Upon being told by Goodman this was the company's practice Silverman contended the company was thereby taking away from its customers something that belonged to them.

Goodman argued that if it were not put into surplus it would "distort the accounting system."

"But the fact remains that it goes into surplus and gives the stockholders something to play with," rejoined Silverman vigorously. "And when you have your financial parties and split dividends your books don't look so bad."

From an accounting standpoint Goodman still insisted the way the rebates were treated made no difference.

He was supported by Wycliffe C. Marshall of Watertown, attorney for a number of Edison customers, as a rate treatise.

"Well, if Marshall agrees with you, it must be wrong," shot back Silverman to the amusement of the commission.

RISING YOUNG FILM ACTOR CARRIES OFF HONORS IN LOEW'S STATE BILL

HAUPT IN ROLE OF GUARD

By HARRIS MORGAN

DOLORES DEL RIO and Edmund Lowe, two notable screen favorites, are united this week in "The Bad One," dramatic and melodramatic film of love, murder and prison outbreak at Loew's State. Ullrich Haupt, rising young film actor, takes the honors away from both principals by an exceptionally neat bit of work in a most ungrateful role.

For the purposes of plot, everyone in "The Bad One" is French, save Mr. Lowe, who comes from the Brooklyn waterfront, and Don Alvarado, who impersonates an amorous but somewhat foolish Spanish gentleman...All of the action takes place in France, most of it in a waterfront dive in Marseilles and in a lonely island prison off the coast. Miss Del Rio is, of course, a singer and dancer in the dive, where, it is to be supposed, she succeeds in being a very good girl despite her questionable title of "The Bad One."

Dolores Del Rio

And who should come sailing into her life but Mr. Lowe, playing a role not so far different from those he enacted in "What Price Glory?" and "The Cock-Eyed World"? Needless to say, Mr. Lowe falls in love with Miss Del Rio, and she, in turn, falls in love with him after some preliminary excursions into the field of sentiment.

Then Mr. Lowe, worse luck, permanently puts one of "The Bad One's" enemies out of the world, and is imprisoned by a hard hearted French court. So off he goes to the island prison, and who should follow him to that most attractive spot but the noble heroine, sacrificing everything so that she may remain near her love.

But with the murder done, the plot begins to turn violently melodramatic. All sorts of unlikely, improbable and impossible things begin to happen and keep right on happening. Mr. Lowe and Miss Del Rio struggle as hard as they can against these handicaps, but they cannot surmount them. Strange to say, Mr. Haupt, cast as a prison guard, does

He never seems to be overwhelmed even by the most melodramatic of situations, he keeps his acting on a suave, easy and even key. He never roars; when he wishes to be impressive, he lowers his voice. And at the end, he is the outstanding character in this strange mixture of reality and unreality that calls itself "The Bad One."

Those who follow Miss Del Rio with interest and Mr. Lowe with admiration, will undoubtedly enjoy the film despite its flaws. And those who appreciate good acting, will welcome Mr. Haupt.

Bagged With Simple Gesture

MARJORIE WHITE AND EL BRENDEL

MR. BRENDEL MAY BE an unresponsive, even unwilling, victim, but he'll soon begin to like Miss White's determined style of attack. A scene from Movietown "Follies of 1930." (B. F. Keith's).

IRENE RICH HEADS CAST FOR TALKIE OF OLD SUCCESS

By LOUELLA O. PARSON
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, June 24—There is a tendency at the moment to invite players to give a repeat performance of their previous successes. If they have scored heavily in a silent picture when the sound version is planned they are asked for an encore. This is all right if the player hasn't changed too much, but when it is a matter of 15 years or more you couldn't expect a girl or a boy either to still look like she did at that time, doesn't have to look 17 to play the mother in "Father's Son" the sound version of "Boy o' Mine." William Beaudine had that in mind when he asked Miss Rich to play the part of the mother she created in the silent picture.

Likewise, Mr. Beaudine was well advised when he selected Lewis Stone for the father, for Mr. Stone shines in these domestic plays. Graham Baker is writing the scenario and while the old scenario must necessarily have dialogue, the continuity of "Boy o' Mine" can be pretty well followed. Leon Janney plays the boy.

LOUIS BROMFIELD cannot write according to a time clock. He has a creative mind that cannot be stirred into action upon demand. He must wait for inspiration. He told Samuel Goldwyn as much and after hearing his side of the story, agreed with him. So Mr. and Mrs. Bromfield are leaving Hollywood July 12 for Paris. In Paris, away from the distractions that Hollywood offers, Mr. Bromfield will write a story for Ronald Colman.

He has completed his share of "Lilli," the Evelyn Laye yarn, and now he has an idea for the Colman play. He is returning when he has a story ready and he promises to bring it back the minute he has it on paper. That is what I call a pleasant assignment.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: James Quirk, picture publisher of Photoplay, greeting all his old friends at the Brown Derby and the Lighthouse Club. Norman Kerry trying to decide whether to go to New York to play in vaudeville or stay out here. Kenneth McKenna now cast for "The General," being asked whether or not he will play in Mary Pickford's picture. Being a diplomat he doesn't answer. Mae Murray, in a summer creation, lunching in the Blossom room at the Roosevelt. Kathryn Carver and Pauline Garon glimpsed at the same place. Naomi Childers, the former Mrs. Luther Reed, entertaining Bernice Claire, Alexander Gray and a group of other congenial friends. The stock market sending everybody down to the beach to commune with the sad sea waves. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Film Who's Who

Sally O'Neil, the winsome miss who plays an important role in "Hold Everything" at The Scollay Sq. this week, is a New Jersey girl, with Bayonne as her birthplace. Sally, with her sister, Molly O'Day, was educated at the Notre Dame Convent in New York city, and later attended the Loretta Abbe Convent in Canada until her parents moved to Los Angeles. Sally's first big chance came in "Mike," when she was presented as a feature player. With this auspicious beginning, Miss O'Neil's rise in the picture world was rapid, and she has been seen in many important productions.

Noted Aerial Stars at Paragon Park

"The Flying Melzoras"—five sensational human birds of the air—are exhibiting their hair raising, startling act all of this week at Paragon Park, Nantasket Beach.

Every Wednesday and Saturday an Italian Illumination is presented.

CHATTERTON FILM SCORES AT ORPHEUM

Ruth Chatterton on the screen in "The Lady of Scandal," and an unusually entertaining five-act variety bill is offered patrons of Loew's Orpheum this current week. Miss Chatterton is seen and heard in an all-talking adaptation of Frederick Lonsdale's sparkling comedy, "The High Road." As Elsie Hillary, the actress who forces her way into snobbish London society, Miss Chatterton gives a penetrating characterization which moves between laughter and tears. Entertaining support is done by the supporting cast, which includes Basil Rathbone, Ralph Forbes, Nance O'Neil, Herbert Bunston, Cyril Chadwick and Moon Carroll. The direction of Sidney Franklin shows the same spontaneity as accustomed his direction of "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney."

Emilie Roreo, the international singing comedian, is headliner of the vaudeville bill. So great a hit was the dapper French artist with his unique French songs and comedy antics that he was forced to beg off from more encores. He held the stage for six minutes beyond his allotted time. Before taking his final bow, however, he gave his famous impersonation of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt and the "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," which he created for Charlot's Revue. Joe Fejer's company of Broadway entertainers and novelty orchestra appeared on the bill in second position and came in for much applause. The bill was completed by Olivette Haynes and Fred E. Beck in a comedy skit, "Her Guardian," and Alf W. Loyal's Arabian stallions.

Special Patriotic Film on Loew Bills

The appeal of Vice Pres. Charles Curtis that the motion picture theaters of the country aid in having June 30 to July 4 observed as "Patriotic Week" is being heeded by the Loew circuit, including the Loew's State and Orpheum Theatres in this city.

All during the week the local theaters will present a special Independence Day film production as an added feature.

ZIEGFELD IS PLANNING BIG SEASON

Florenz Ziegfeld is preparing himself for a busy season, with Boston set apart as the place of premiere for his first show. As previously announced, he will present Marilyn Miller and Fred and Adele Astaire in the musical comedy "Tom, Dick and Harry," with score by Vincent Youmans and book by William Anthony McGuire. Rehearsals will begin Aug. 2.

According to present plans the show will open in Boston. After a brief run there, it will open at the Ziegfeld Theatre Sept. 22.

As soon as the rehearsals for "Tom, Dick and Harry" are well under way, Mr. Ziegfeld will begin rehearsals for his announced "Follies," with a cast which is expected to prove starting for its magnitude and the principals included. Mr. Ziegfeld states also that he has virtually completed the supervision of the talkie version of "Whoopee," with Eddie Cantor, and that within a month will arrange for the road tour of Ed Wynn in "Simple Simon."

Philip Merivale

The first production of the Professional Players' season will be "Death Takes a Holiday," one of the outstanding dramatic successes of the current dramatic season. Philip Merivale and the entire cast which has been presenting the play in New York this season will be in the cast when it comes to Boston.

Ladies Helping Hand Auxiliary to Stage Boat Sail and Bridge, July 21

NANCY BREWSTER

With the activities of the cold weather months over, members of the Ladies' Helping Hand Auxiliary to the Home for Jewish Children are now turning their attention and efforts to the boat sail and bridge scheduled for July 21. An annual event with the 9000 auxiliary women, it is a money-maker of no small proportions and adds considerably to the Camp Emoh fund.

Camp Emoh, the pet philanthropy of the auxiliary, and next in importance to the support and maintenance of the home itself, houses the children of the home during the summer months.

Two other important dates were decided upon at the final meeting of the executive board, held at the Canterbury st., Dorchester, home, yesterday, presided over by the president, Mrs. Samuel Altman, and attended by close to 50 members. October 20 was set aside for a Life Membership luncheon, to which those women who have already paid their $100 or part of it, will be invited by the auxiliary as a dignified gesture of appreciation for their interest and assistance in making the Home for Jewish Children the sound and inimitable institution that it is.

WILL UNVEIL TABLET

A bronze tablet, on which will be inscribed the names of these big-hearted Boston women, is to be unveiled and dedicated November 9, the last of the impressive as well as important calendar dates of the auxiliary.

But to the furtherance of the boat sail and bridge, most of the meeting was given over. Mrs. Colman Levin, past president of the auxiliary, was appointed general chairman of the affair. So distributed the 2000 tickets to several chairmen.

A Nantasket steamer has been chartered by the auxiliary and will leave the Boston wharf at 1 p. m., July 21, on a sail of Boston harbor with at least 1500 women, it is hoped.

Mrs. George Alpert, Mrs. Levin's daughter, is secretary of the affair, and these women are in charge of outlying sections: Mrs. Harry Levin, Marblehead; Mrs. Samuel Altman, Brookline; Mrs. Jacob Schneider, Jamaica Plain; Mrs. Copel Levenson, Winthrop; Mrs. Louis Segal, Revere; Mrs. Emil Friedman and Mrs. Louis Levine, Sharon; Mrs. David Stern, Nantasket; Mrs. Frank Goldberg and Mrs. Harry Werby, Dorchester, Mrs. Bernard Weinberg, Mrs. Louis Iager, Mrs. Morris Greenstein, Roxbury; Mrs. Joseph Tuck, Nahant. Mrs. Maurice Bennett has charge of the refreshments; Mrs. Samuel S. Rosenthal, treasurer, and Mrs. Anna G. Alshuler, publicity.

VALUE OF PUBLICITY

Mrs. Mary Cohen, charter member of the auxiliary, and one of its most active members when it was organized 33 years ago, was present, holding the enviable distinction of never having missed an executive board session.

Nancy was called upon to speak and she outlined the value of publicity to organizations, especially emphasizing the need which living auxiliaries and groups have of a live-wire press chairman if messages of philanthropy and events of unusual success are to be gotten over to an interested public.

Women Hold Many Public Offices in State of Connecticut

Here's a challenge to Massachusetts women! And it comes by way of the bulletin of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, which says that women justices of the peace are no rarity in Connecticut. Sixty-five hang their shingles in full display in that state, with the Bay State nowhere in competitive run.

Connecticut seems to offer unusual encouragement to women to run for representative types of office, the item informs us, with enviable record. Twenty women are members of the state Legislature, a record unchallenged anywhere in the country; 31 women "selectmen" and two county commissioners, an office held by men only in the other states studied by the league.

Notables to Speak at College Catholic Clubs Convention

The Rev. M. J. Ahern of Weston College, Mayor James M. Curley and Senator David I. Walsh will address the annual conference of the Federation of College Catholic Clubs when they meet in the city July 2 to 5. It is expected that Cardinal O'Connell, who has sanctioned the conference, will either say the opening mass or speak at that time.

From all over the country are delegates expected, arriving at the Hotel Statler July 2 for registration and the sessions which start that afternoon following a luncheon. The delegates will have time to "play" in the evening when an informal buffet supper dance will take them over to Walker Memorial at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

There will be a formal dance July 3 at the Statler and an all-day outing at Manomet on the holiday with events of interest and enjoyment on the program.

On July 5 the election of officers will take place with a final luncheon closing the conference. That afternoon Mrs. Maurice J. Curren, vice-chairman of the patronage committee, will give a tea to clergy guests and national council officers at her summer residence at Phillips Beach.

Upwards of 300 delegates and guests from this country and Canada will attend. The executive committee includes Joseph Leary, Dorchester; Molly Malloy, Swampscott, secretary; Chester F. Buckley, Taunton, vice-chairman in charge of finance; Thomas E. Lynch, Woburn; Peter Keewin, Roxbury; Edmund Ward, Roxbury; Frank A. Barrett, Arlington, publicity; Mrs. Francis T. Slattery, chairman, patrons' committee; Mrs. Maurice J. Curran, vice-chairman, and Prof. R. P. Doherty.

Many Club Leaders to Attend Chautauqua Woman's Club Session

The Chautauqua Woman's Club, which opens its activities the week of June 30, when the institution starts its summer season, will be addressed by such women as Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler; Mrs. John F. Sippel, president General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. John Hanna, president of the National Young Women's Christian Association; Mrs. W. R. Alvord, press chairman, General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Percy V. Pennypacker, former president of the General Federation.

Chautauqua has been heavily schooled in the past by clubwomen from all over the country.

Black Satin Shimmers Into Paris Mode

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American.

Paris, June 24.

A MATERIAL TRIUMPH is to be recorded in the return to favor of black satin. If your sartorial suppressed desire happens to be composed of this eminently good looking and practical fabric, then you can be prepared to express it next season. For most of the new autumn collections include one or more satin frocks of the afternoon and coat-frock variety, and very delightful and wearable models they are, too.

We think that you will like the attractive black satin coat-frocks that many stylists predict will dot the autumn landscape. They are trig and trig without being too tailored, for a frock of black satin, if too severely cut, has something of a funereal air that is anything but desirable.

By the same token a frock of this material with too much ornamentation or too elaborately cut is inclined to be somewhat staggy, a characteristic that every well-dressed woman strenuously avoids.

To give you an advance idea of the kind of treatment accorded to satin by the couturiers here, we are sending you a sketch of a much admired model in the new Vionnet collection that is as ever replete with clever items and ideas.

The model shown is of very heavy black satin and is a wrap-over dress with the surplice closing in front held at the left side with a single button placed just below the ribbon belt. The cut-in yoke, cut in a piece with the sleeves, is drawn in soft folds across the back of the neck, and has scarf ends which tie in a bow knot on the left shoulder.

The circular skirt is open its entire length at the side [illegible]ing, lapping well over at the front. The softly draped girdle of flesh-colored georgette. It will be noted that no attempt has been made to take in the width of the dress at the waist, it is straight throughout its length.

An echo from a recent meeting at Longchamp is to be found in the sketch of a colorful ensemble seen there. Over an emerald green crepe de chine frock was worn a tailored coat of matching green velours de laine, with a half belt across the back and double breasted closing in front.

The collar is of beaver. The coat fabric was used for the little beret, trimmed with a cockade ribbon band and bow in lighter green. Emerald green pumps completed the happy ensemble, appropriate for an out-of-doors event where practical smartness is so much to the point.

AT RECENT RACE meetings at Longchamp, this colorful ensemble was seen. It is of green velours de laine, with half belt. The collar is of Beaver. (Sketched in Paris.)

HEAVY BLACK SATIN is used in this wrap-over dress from the new Vionnet collection. The circular skirt is open its entire length. (Sketched in Paris.)

Widening and extension of St Ann st., West Roxbury, from Forest Hills to Roslindale sq., has been blocked by Mayor Curley.

Vetoing the order for a loan of $350,000 for the project, he declared yesterday that the cost was far in excess of the benefits of the proposed widening and was consequently unjustifiable.

Raquel Enjoys First Day on Board Ship; Finds Greta Agreeable

What Has Gone Before

Raquel Rojos, half-Spanish and half-American, comes from a desert town in Arizona to New York, where her exotic beauty attracts the attention of the famous Alphonse Courbet, who engages her as a model for Paris fashions. She has a sensational success in New York and then sails for Paris on the Gloire de France. She shares a luxurious suite with another model, Greta Tosak, a stunning blonde.

CHAPTER 24

Raquel stood on the deck, close to the rail, until the mass of moving figures and waving arms on the pier receded into the night. Points of light swam in the darkness on each side of the molten mass that was the river, picking out forms of black shadows that reached toward the stars.

"Adios, New York," Raquel murmured. "Adios, beautiful city."

"Beautiful!" Greta exclaimed, leaning forward to see if this strange Raquel were indeed in earnest. "How do you get that way?"

"Now, now, Miss Greta." Alphonse was displeased. "La petite Raquel has her dreams. You must not disturb them. Come, we go below."

Alphonse bowed his goodnights at the door of the suite.

"My cabin is in the next corridor—Number 18A," he said. "If you should want me for anything whatever, send the steward. Bon voyage, mon petites."

While they were on deck, a basket of fruit had made its appearance on the table. A large basket, in the shape of a gondola, bearing big orange spheres, fat purple figs, clusters of black grapes as big as walnuts, jolly red apples, large rosy-skinned globes that looked like quinces, but that were. Greta informed Raquel, pomegranates, and vows at that.

"Alphonse has done himself proud," said Greta. Her slant eyes, blue as cornflowers in a field of ripe wheat, were fixed on Raquel.

All the wisdom that had come to women down the ages was in the crinkles at the corners of those childish blue eyes.

"Ah, why it's too wonderful to be true," breathed Raquel, burying her nose in the tall roses. "Like a magician had come in, and any minute he'll wave his wand and take it away."

"You've been to Paris before?" Greta shrugged her shoulders wearily.

"This is my sixth crossing," she said.

"Sixth! Why, you must have started when you were a baby."

Greta eyed Raquel sharply. Yes, this strange girl was sincere.

"Thanks, old dear," she said. "That was a neat compliment. I see we're going to get along swell. I'm not such an old hag, I think."

Sleep would not come to Raquel that night. The consciousness of motion, unfamiliar sounds, even the yellow and silver canopy over her bed kept her brain racing, her eyes wide. Light came, it seemed, before she was comfortably settled in bed. She walked to a window, high and round, with the glass pushed back. Nothing was visible out there on the gray-green stretch of dancing water.

There was a pile of books, new with the gayly-colored covers still on them, on the table by her bed. Magazines on the rack under the table. She crawled back into bed. Tried to compose herself to read. She could do no more than turn over the pages, unseemingly.

After what seemed to her to be hours, she arose. She wanted a leisurely toilet. Her clothes. There were no trunks. She examined the room. The clothes had been unpacked, neatly arranged in a long closet. Yards of beautiful clothes on satin-covered hangers.

"I'll try this pleated skirt with the small red and black checks," she decided, "and the red slip-over blouse. It's gay, like I feel."

When she was fully dressed, she went into the gray room of the suite, and tapped lightly on Greta's door. A drowsy voice told her to "come in."

Crack of Dawn
Raquel Early Riser

Greta was snuggled down in the pillows, her head swathed, granny fashion, in a length of blue chiffon that failed to rival the blue of her eyes.

"When do we go to breakfast?" asked Raquel, apologetic for the intrusion. "I'm starved."

"Good Heavens!" Greta yawned like a lazy kitten. "Do you always get up in the middle of the night?"

"It's after 10."

"I told you. Crack of dawn. Ring into bell here. The third one marked steward. We never go down for breakfast. It's served here, in our rooms. Order me a flock of orange juice, will you, old dear? And some Perrier. Might as well get used to it now."

"Some—what?"

"Perrier. Water. With bubbles in it."

"We have oranges, out there in the basket. There's ice water, too—shall I fetch you a glass?"

"No thanks, dearie. There was once a chorus girl, too, who had a book."

"We have lots of books. Here, on your table. There are more in my room."

Greta groaned.

"Now, dearie," she said. "You're too good to be true. Honest. Heavens, how I'd like a flock of littee. Black as a shoe and pig-ing hot."

"Surely they have coffee on the ship—"

"I'll say they have. It's very popular, especially the morning after. But not for little Greta. I've got to think of my complexion. If I lost it, good night."

"It doesn't seem to bother me," Raquel said doubtfully. "I've always drunk it."

Greta sat up in bed, studied Raquel closely.

"Gee!" she said. "It's real."

"What's real?" Raquel was puzzled.

"That pallid look you have. Like a bowl of pearls served with thick cream. Take it from me, old dear, you're going to be an eyeful of good news to the boys along the Rue de la Paix and the Bois."

Greta climbed out of bed. Through the thin veils of her pajamas which made her look more than ever like a pretty boy, her flesh showed pink and firm.

Girls Dress
More Compliments

"Might as well get up," she yawned. "We'll go out on deck and get a load of air in our lungs. It's been no long time I had any really fresh air that the old bellows think I've died and have folded up."

She poked through more yards of clothing in her closet.

"That red certainly looks nifty on you, dearie," she said. "Let me see, I'd better go in for this linen thing, so we won't clash."

She held the dress before her, studying the effect in the long mirror.

"It makes your hair look like raw gold, just as it comes from the mines," said Raquel. One knew she was thinking aloud.

"Gosh, dearie, you're certainly going to be a comfort to me. As for the mines, I'm some handy little gold-digger, as you'll soon see if you stick around. There's the steward. Tell him to make it snappy."

A half hour later Raquel and Greta were walking briskly along a smooth board-walk that completely girdled the immense building that was rollicking along on the surface of the ocean.

The Beauty Box
—By HELEN FOLLETT—

Beautifying is established on a sound basis. Every cosmetic chemist must submit his formulas to the pure food department in Washington, though why to that department nobody knows, since we don't eat our shadows or our dye. Hospitals are putting in departments devoted to plastic surgery. Physicians cure their patients of "stomach" patients to doll up at beauty shops. There is no more paraffin filling of sunken cheeks. In fact, in fact there is no more "sowing the seeds of destruction in the furrows of time." Everything is hunky dory and the glorification of the American girl goes on. Yes! And the glorification of those who are no longer girls.

There are two effective treatments for the skin that is thick, greasy and coarse—bathing and dieting. Hygienic measures are more important than cosmetics, though astringents and green vegetables will help. The condition shows that the skin is not functioning properly. Soap, warm water and a bath brush, combined with muscular energy, will refine the texture of epidermis. By cutting down on sweets, starch and fats, sebaceous glands will have less work to do. Fruit and green vegetables aplenty! That's the beauty ticket.

Go to it.

There is ever present the old question, "How often shall I wash my hair?" The answer is, "Whenever it is in need of cleanliness." Oily hair that catches no more handy little gold-digger, as you'll soon see if you stick around. There's the steward. Tell him to make it snappy."

Fashion Trophy Goes to Sports

By ANN ARDEN

(ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m.)

THE COUNTRY club season opens! The rocking chair brigade is comfortably settled at its contract tables in a shady corner of the porch and every few moments the brisk clip of a ball being driven from the first tee is wafted upward. Everything is colorful, gay, clubby and everyone feels a glow of gratitude for the grand old Scotchman that thought of golf!

IT IS interesting to observe, even though active sports clothes maintain a casual simplicity, that in little details they more than admit the feminine trend of the hour. Golf clothes are decidedly workable from a sports standpoint. They are designed with freedom of movement in mind, but if the skirt is very trim the blouse favors a frivolous touch here and there.

THOUGH WE are perfect ladies in the evening, it is a bit difficult to give up boyish styles that have been so happily chosen for sports wear. Shorts for sports we insist upon. They are frequently covered by wrap-around skirts, but they remain favorites. Shorts for beach wear are even gaining in popularity. Linen shirts and dresses are running about the beaches at this moment, proving that ladylike styles have their place and time but we must have freedom of action.

THE MODEL pictured, being one of these versatile sports-women, has chosen a combination outfit. If she changes her mind about golf on the club house steps, she may take off her skirt and dash over to the tennis courts arrayed in brief shorts to match her shirt. This three-in-one outfit is made of linle mesh, in maize color. The workmanlike shirt has an inverted pleat in back, short sleeves, with rackish-lined edges, and a turnover collar which may be buttoned high or low. Matching lisle socks are worn.

COTTON MESH has become a favorite for sport wear. It is cool, and wrinkles not at all

FOR TENNIS, the good team of socks and espadrilles still rate fashions cup. Espadrilles are made in the white tennis cloth with either plain or colored soles and pipings. A smart new tennis sock comes in a natural, undyed tussor silk with a turn down cuff featuring a drop-stitch effect.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs, or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser, or in Station WHDH.

Heart and Home -:- -:- -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

You should finish your training for a nurse by all means

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have often read your column and your advice to others. So I hope you can help me in solving a difficult problem. I am a girl of 22 and a student nurse in a training school for nurses. I have a year and six months more to train before I graduate. I am engaged to be married to a young man who holds nothing but contempt and hatred toward my profession. He is contemplating on selling his place of business, as it is dull here. He insists on my deserting my training and marry him immediately upon the sale of his place of business. I refuse to abide by his wishes he will break our engagement. My chosen profession is something I have studied hard for and held very dear to my heart. I am asking you would it be advisable for me to put behind me all the knowledge I have obtained?

STUDENT NURSE

Manchester, N. H.

Dear "Student Nurse":

It looks as if you would have to choose between your profession and the man you love. At any rate I would advise you to finish your training and then, if anything happens, you will always have something to depend on. Those are lonely eager and demanding lovers do and you may be glad of your training not always make the best husbands in some day.

Useless To Try

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:-

Two years ago I was introduced to Al at my own party. Then every time I had a party, he was invited. However, I did not realize how much I had begun to care for him, until recently. Three months ago he was at my house with a friend I had another girl friend with me and we were talking and having a gay time. When he left he said he would call me up soon. Well, one week went by, two, then three, I was heartsore. He took another girl to his class day and call her up all the time. Should I try to win him back.

ANGELINA.

Dear Angelina: It's really useless to try to win the affections of a man who doesn't want to be "won." Most boys consider part of their fun's privilege to get as many girls as possible interested in them without any really serious intention on their own part. Forget him and enjoy yourself with your other friends.

Cultivate Others

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a girl of 15 and for the past year I've been in love with a young man of my own age. He is very quiet and stubborn and will never speak first to anyone. I pass him many times, but we never speak. When the boys and girls are together they tease me about him, but he never says anything. I find myself conquering him with others. I have tried many times to forget him, but it seems impossible.

How can I win his friendship?

LOVESICK.

Dear Lovesick: I would advise you to stop comparing all your acquaintances with just one person. Each person has qualities peculiar to themselves, and may be equally desirable in their own way. If the young man shows no inclination to be friendly, there are many others who would be worth cultivating, are there not?

Let Mother Guide

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a girl of 16 and each year in school from the first grade up to my sophomore year in high school, I have had one weakness, from each grade. In the ninth grade I was more than keen on a fellow in my graduating class. He was 17 and I 14. But I'd no special regard for me other than one of the many I knew. I did everything I could to attract him to me, without cheapening myself.

He was going steady with another girl. I have lost all those silly sentiments toward him and he has picked up the matter where I dropped it. He left his girl and wants to go with me. Shall I treat him indifferent as he treated me? I have made the acquaintance of an older man now and like him, but my mother does not approve of my passing favors.

IN LOVE WITH LIFE.

Lowell

Dear In Love with Life: You seem to have such a thorough understanding of yourself and your desires I really see very little need of advice from me. Better treat all the boys indifferently for some time yet and let your mother guide your choice, if possible. Of course, mother is probably measuring the youth of today by yesterday's standards, and your mother is not the only one to find them lacking. However, they doubtless have other good points which only contemporaries can appreciate.

How to Keep Well -:- By Dr. R. S. Copeland

Child Health Education Is Essential.

During the last quarter of a century there has been a growing appreciation of the importance of child health and child welfare. The science and art of caring for the infant has been developed to a great extent. More recently much interest has been centered about the care of the child too young to go to school.

National consciousness has been aroused to the need of health and education for the child. We have learned this must be looked after in the home, in elementary and high school, and on up through college. In preparing for the World War, thousands of young men were rejected on the grounds of being physically unfit. This taught us a salutary lesson.

Significant changes have been taking place in many schools in the country. It has been found health protection and education go hand in hand.

No more important and far-reaching plan for public health service has been presented than that given some weeks ago under the auspices of the White House conference on child health and protection. Dr. Thomas D. Wood chairman of the committee on school child has stated the program of work outlined. It is that every child of the nation is to have an equal opportunity for keeping and gaining the best health of which they are capable, health of body, health of mind and health of character in spite both of the entire personality.

Under such a plan as presented daily health work in every high school would mean daily health work in every college.

This will be made up of corps of trained teachers and nurses, in co-operation with the home, the family physician, the clinics and hospitals.

Elaborate plans for the nation's public school systems will, in time, no doubt result in adequate healthful school buildings which shall be health centers. The up-to-date school affords a healthful environment for the nation's future citizens.

With periodic health examinations for every child, dental inspection and treatment once or twice a year, health instruction, all promoted in the school as a health center—such a project is indeed a wonderful plan. Great things would come of it. I pray it may succeed.

A healthy child lives, acts and earns in an atmosphere crowded by health of friends.

The co-operation of the home, the school and the health officer is needful in the larger plan of education. Every parent and every teacher should be a health teacher and by example and precept direct children under their care to sensible health habits and a health knowledge

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

LOVE IS so new When did it Love is so frail A word may blight
Dawn, The sweetest bloom on all
This wonder that transforms all tree,
This dream from which all dreams A look may quench the souls delight, are drawn, A sigh may end its ecstasy
To lend to plodding thought, Love is so strong. No space or bright wings time
Love is so old. Since time began, Can kill that clear, undying Through Earth's uncounted dy- spark nasties Enigma, frail or strong, always
All lovers have thus joyed to plan Its light alone illumes Earth's
All have built castles fair as dark.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Colors—and the Man

Women are enjoying a grand and glorious color-jag!

Every beach looks like an artists palette. And the once austere and uncompromising American home is rapidly learning to resemble an operating room and is beginning to vie with the Aurora Borealis.

Women have always been affected by colors. A rose-colored boudoir can make even the plainest woman feel romantic and feminine. And an orchid one can inspire her with positively purple thoughts. While a marigold kitchenette can turn even the deadly monotony of cooking into a thing of sweetness and light!

But how does all this chromatic craze affect a MAN? How does he react to this hysteria in the bathroom, and this positive RIOT of color all over the house? Do pink soap, variegated bath rugs and a flowered shower-curtain stimulate him to wilder ablutions and dredge him in to sweeping dips during his matutinal plunges? Or do they make him nervous and cause his disposition to curdle?

How does he feel when he wakes up in the morning and finds his head reposing on a rose-pink pillow slip or his hands crossed on a baby-blue sheet? Does he feel like an interloper in such a bassinet?

Does an apple-green breakfast room have a restful and soothing effect on his stormy-petrel nature and his hangover grouch? And does a Chinese red dining room make him up and inspire him to brilliant repartee after dinner? Or do they merely remind him of his aridness and excite his toxic-poisoning tendency?

I'll tell you how all this new color madness affects a man! He LOVES it! He eats it up! He revels in it! It is hvacinths to his soul.

For years and years man has suffered from a suppressed desire for more color in his life, more of it in his home, more color in his clothes and more color in his wife! Now he is getting it—and his color complex is at last satisfied! Here's to more and brighter colors in the home! Anything to take the "moan" out of matrimony!

Girls Return to Kitchen

By MARTHA LEE

Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Homemakers' Club of Over 37,000 Enrolled Members

"Don't think that you married woman have a monopoly on the domestic arts!" broadcasted my friend the Business Woman, sipping her iced tea. "Girls are going back into the kitchen! And I've got the corner grocer, the butcher and the department - head of stores, evening cooking class teachers and apartment house managers all to testify for me."

Martha Lee

Don't think, though, that they're going into domestic science in the quaint old custom of working 14 hours out of every 24! But it is a fact that successful business women and working girls are getting the kick out of learning that there's lots of enjoyment in a hand-cooked, well-balanced meal. And what a comfort for their man acquaintances (not to hint bait)!

Many business girls have their breakfasts in, and serve, times a week cook company dinners for their men friends. Over the week ends they cook all their own meals and seem to be getting a lot of enjoyment out of being really domestic.

Cook books with recipes for two are among the best sellers, and there is a call for hints on spread dates, too, among the girls. Some girl takes an intelligent personal interest in her cooking as she does in her letter writing.

Well, few women can paint a passable picture or write a salable story, most of them can plan a dainty luncheon or a substantial meal for a family. Here's a chance to show off some of that creative instinct on the home front.

Do you know a woman who rushes to and fro all day in crowded streets, offices and restaurants, changes her whole personality for a more feminine role when she dons her smock in her own little kitchenette and becomes a hostess?

And let's whisper it—haven't you noticed that many a marriage proposal has sung in a kitchen? Young men living in furnished rooms appreciate the girl who can serve a tantalizing home meal. Really I should say that this heart-to-the-kitchen movement might almost be called a romantic one!

To all of which I say Amen, and shall pass the thought along to Realm Reader Fairfax with my blessing.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

Mrs. Beeckman Advises

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Serving Birthday Cake

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN

Will you please set me right, through your column, as to just what is the procedure in cutting a birthday cake? I am to give a party to my 16-year-old niece. Are the candles blown out by the guest of honor, and does she cut the cake, and what is done with the candles while the cake is being cut?

2 I was interested to learn, through your column, that it is ethical for the hostess to take her own prize at bridge if she rates the highest score. None of us have ever done it, and it is the irony of fate that one is always high in one's own home. However, does you think it is nice to waive your rights to the prize—just as a sort of hoss grab?

1 If the party is a "sit down party," the birthday cake is brought in just before the dessert is served. The candles are all lighted when the cake is brought in. Then the glowing loveliness is duly admired by the guests, and after making a wish tries to blow out all the candles. If she doesn't succeed in the first puff, she blows until she does.

Then she removes the candles and pipe holders from the cake, and cuts the cake for her guests.

2 No, I don't remember ever hearing that the hostess should give away her prize. For her to make this gesture seems to me a bit too obvious.

Reminding One of the Hour

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN

1 Should a girl tell a young man what time he should go home when he calls on her?

2 Should she tell him when to come again and if it does not suit him, let him object?

MAY

1. The well-bred young man will know when to go, and he himself will make the suggestion, just as any other visitor would do. We hope that the hostess won't have to remind him of the hour and of its unseasonableness for departure! But, if this must be done because he is over staying, she will do it with the maximum of graciousness—and this necessity certainly takes graciousness!

2. She invites him to come again, if she wishes, and then he may, if he wishes, nominate a time. Or he may take the invitation in a general way, and later telephone or write when he wishes to make a definite engagement.

The Gift to the Fiance

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN:

I have been going out with a young man for about a year on an average of five times a week. He is going to give me an engagement ring for my birthday, which is in July. His birthday comes before mine and I want to give him a gift which he may prize. Am I wrong for me to give him such an expensive gift, but I feel that as long as we intend to be married in the near future a watch would be all right. What do you think?

MAY

Since you are engaged to this young man it would be correct for you to give him a watch on his birthday.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

EVENING AMERICAN — New York Stocks — News of Street — MARKETS

STOCKS LOWER IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, June 24—A bear drive against the rail stocks depressed the general level of these issues close to the resistance points of last November on the stock exchange today, and individual issues breaking through the bottom prices of last year.

A long list of important shares from all groups sold off $2 to more than $5.

The market displayed pronounced weakness in the last hour, as the selling of the rails extended and spread to other sections of the list, and such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American and Westinghouse Electric were driven down 3 to 4 more points. An accelerating factor was the sharp break in wheat which rose dropped $20.

The close was weak.

GAINS CANCELLED

Before the unsettling downturn of the rails, the market had been dull, offering unessentially. During an interval of short covering in the morning, many important stocks regained $2 to $5, but practically all of these advances were cancelled by early afternoon.

Renewed weakness of the wheat market was disappointing to Wall Street and made stocks of little interest to bear drives. July wheat dropped around 4 cents, establishing another new low for the season, 16 years, around 88 cents a bushel.

Southern Railway sold off more than $5, re-touching the all-time lows since 1925. St. Louis-San Francisco dropped nearly as much recording the lowest point since 1916. Rock Island sagged more than $3, getting back to the levels of 1927.

New York Central, New Haven, Missouri Pacific, Reading and Delaware and Hudson dropped about $2 to $4 to new levels for the year or longer. Atchison sold up $4 in the early trading only to drop more than $10 from the top.

Sears Roebuck dropped $5 to the lowest price since 1927.

Wall Street was more impressed with a sharp falling off in the volume of trading than in the rather meaningless price movements.

DULLNESS EXPECTED

While yesterday's rally failed to carry over into today's trading, the renewed dullness of the market was interpreted in brokerage circles as indicating that the liquidating movement under way for the past three weeks had largely spent itself.

While some commission houses looked for a substantial technical rally, there was a general feeling that the market would turn dull and stay dull for a while.

A few good opportunities are itching to get into action again, but with unimpressive earnings statements and more dividend reductions expected to feature business news during the next several weeks, prospects for another individual stock bull market during the near future are regarded as anything but bright.

Rather discouraging today was the condition statement of weekly reporting Federal Reserve member banks, showing an increase of $31,500,000 in loans on securities, as contrasted to a drop of $211,000,000 in brokers' loans during the same period. Loans against security collateral are now $1,233,000,000, about last year at this time. All other loans, including commercial, and borrowings at the Federal Reserve, however, are off $548,000,000 and $630,000,000 respectively, from last year at this time.

An encouraging development was a gain of $170,000,000 in all other loans, perhaps indicating increasing business activity in some lines, but Wall Street is by no means inclined to regard much of the stock market liquidation during the past three weeks as representing liquidation of old bank loans on security collateral, not cleaned up after the autumn break, and hoped to find some indication of it.

Some bankers believe many of the smaller banks have run in need of such a house cleaning. Of course this contemplates does not include non-member or small member banks, and is therefore not conclusive.

INTEREST RATE AGAIN CUT

New York, June 24 (AP)—Reflecting current credit conditions and the recent reduction from 4 per cent to the red account rate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, the New York Clearing House today reduced the minimum interest rates payable on deposits by member banks.

The rate on deposits payable within 30 days and on credit balances payable on demand to banks, trust companies and private bankers, excluding mutual savings banks, was reduced from 2 to 1½ per cent.

This rate also applies to deposits of non-member institutions. The rates on time deposits and deposits of mutual savings banks were not one per cent each, making the new rates two per cent.

In the opinion of many bankers action of the clearing house was overdue and became imperative. They pointed out that since the old rate was sent into effect March 26 last, there have been two reductions in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, carrying that rate down from 3½ per cent to 2½ per cent. The lowest rate in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's 16 years of existence.

TWO PER CENT

E. W., Boston.—I have been watching General Electric. What do you think of it? Are earnings good?

Ans.—General Electric is the world's largest manufacturer of electric equipment. The dividend record antedates 1900. Adjusted to reflect four-for-one split January, 1930, net income for 1929 equaled $2.24 a share; in the first quarter of current year, 50 cents. These figures contrast with current annual dividend rate of $1.60 a share. At recent levels the yield was only 2 per cent but with dividends will warrant the current price has not been indicated.

NO INCOME

C. E. Dedham.—Would your reaction be favorable or unfavorable toward a purchase of American Sumatra Tobacco?

Ans.—American Sumatra Tobacco pays no dividend. It is a speculation. Advice to investors is unfavorable under present conditions.

Quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share due April 15, 1928, was omitted. The last payment was January 15, 1930. When you are interested in securities on the basis of investment, write to us for advice.

IRREGULAR RECORD

I. E., Weymouth.—I want to buy a stock for regular income. What is your idea of Sinclair?

Ans.—Earnings for Sinclair Consolidated Oil have been irregular. Because of improvement, however, the directors put the stock on an annual dividend basis of $2 a share April 15, 1929, with 25 cents extra, similar extras July 15 and October 15. January 15, last, only the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share was paid. Net income for 1929 equaled $2.82 a share, compared with $2.31 for 1928. Be conservative. Let us know amount you intend to spend.

RICH MEN ARE NOT SELLING, SAYS FORBES

By B. C. FORBES

New York, June 24—The best tip for today: Read Kipling's "If."

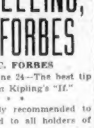
It is especially recommended to Wall Street and to all holders of American stocks. This is no time for any sensible person voluntarily to throw over sound securities. Generous profits were quickly available for those who made purchases when Wall Street became panicky last fall. Now that Wall Street is again indulging in hysteria, there is every reason to believe that those who invest discriminately at this time will also enjoy the opportunity of cashing in handsome profits in the not distant future.



B. C. Forbes.

Don't forget that every last one of the shares now being excitedly dumped on the market is bought by somebody.

Don't imagine for a moment that the Morgans and Bakers and Mellons and Rockefellers and Harknesses are selling stocks at the low prices now ruling. Our shrewdest and wealthiest investors don't sell when everybody else is clamoring to sell regardless of the prices realized. It is exactly at such times that the longest-headed and the longest-pursed investors accumulate securities; then they wait until public sentiment performs a somersault. That public sentiment towards stocks will perform a somersault sooner or later is a foregone conclusion.

"What are you doing to the stock market?" Dwight W. Morrow asked me on the other afternoon. He indicated that he knew of no undisclosed reason for the latest deterioration and added: "It looks just like a secondary reaction." Then he smiled, "But it all seems so far away to me now, the stock market and its doings."

As he had become a grandpa for the first time only an hour or two before, Mexican ambassador was particularly happy.

The thing that pleased him most about the June primaries in Landslide in his favor was that nine of ten of his home-town folks, those knowing him most intimately, voted for him.

Incidentally, the ambassador was starting at 5 to attend a reception in Englewood, chauffered by his eldest daughter, Elizabeth, the young lady in question. Quite a car for young children. And what style of automobile, would you guess, the ambassador was using? One of those so-called station busses, more like a wagon than a regular pleasure car! There is no more democratic man in America than Dwight Morrow.

A few heartening facts:

T. A. Goldstein, vice-president of Pacific States Savings and Loan Company, San Francisco, wires that its resources last week reached $60,116,609, the highest total ever touched by any of America's 13,000 building and loan associations. Growth since January, 1929, has been $38,708,720, of which less than $10,000,000 has been due to consolidations. Since last November 1, resources have increased $12,715,207. He adds:

"This rate of gain continues unabated. President Robert S. Odell credits this remarkable growth to progressive management, customer ownership and advertising. Ours is the most California financial institution to lead the field nationally. It marks another step in the rise of the West as a financial power."

John S. Smith, president of the Smith Motor Car Corporation, New York state:

"Since Jan. 1, 1929, more than $50,000 Chevrolet six-cylinder trucks have been sold, an extraordinary record. Every indication points to a continuation of this success in the months to come."

The Girdler Corporation Louisville, Ky., sends this:

President Walter H. Girdler announces additional sales which will increase production of Tube-Turns, Inc., by 60 per cent, necessitated by an increase of 21½ per cent in sales for the first five months of the year. The plant is operating 24 hours a day.

The Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, of which Walter B. Scott is president, tells this column that "a construction programme involving approximately $60,000,000 is now under way in Fort Worth and Tarrant County, Texas."

For road and bridge improvements, $4,000,000 is being spent. The Texas & Pacific Railway, which recently completed new Fort Worth yards and shops costing $6,000,000, has started building a 13-story passenger station and office building. The city is spending $2,000,000 on grade separations; $2,500,000 on street improvements, a municipal air port and a new central fire station; a city water supply system ( for 1,000,000 people) and irrigation work are costing $6,500,000.

Stepdaughters of War

have got as thin as a rail. She says your shop is one of the worst in France. It's notorious everywhere. She says it's merry hell. She says there are only about 30 girls out of 100 who have stuck it longer than six weeks or so. Is this true? Let me know, and if it is, you've jolly well got to transfer.

Here's a job she had. Our hours are awful, we never get any time off and the nurses treat us like lumps of dirt, they simply loathe the V. A. D.'s, and seem determined to make us sorry we ever enlisted.

Still we survive, it would take more than a few sisters to get me, I wash up dishes from morn to dewy eve, Snitch and I share a washhouse.—Note about my address—so it's not too bad. You've no idea how many dirty dishes there are in the world, Sis. I am bounded on the north by plates, on the south by bowls, on the east by cups, and on the west by saucers.

If all the dirty dishes I have washed up were placed end-to-end they'd reach to the moon. When I am not washing dishes I take in meals on little wagons on wheels to the wards. My entrance is the signal for all the beds to chuck bits of paper and toothbrushes at me. They have no respect for my uniform. The sisters get furious.

I shall be taken off breakfasts soon I have no doubt. The convalescents come out and dry up for us sometimes, some of them are topping. I do a bit of flirting in between plates, Snitch is a good sort. A man she was a bit keen on from her village was brought in wounded the other day. Snitch was terribly thrilled and asked Matron if she could go and see him.

Now Matron isn't a bad old stick at all, a bit Stone-Age in her outlook but not a bad old bird. We all like her, but she has one bee in her Sister Dora cap, and that's W. C.'s.

"Certainly, my child," she said to Snitch, "you can go and sit with your friend but you must not be idle. Take this."

So she hands poor old Snitch a big wad of tissue paper and a pair of scissors.

"While you are talking to your friend," says Matron, "you can cut squares of paper for the W. C. I will give you some string and every hundred sheets you can string them ready to hang up."

Wasn't a howl? Matron was quite annoyed when Snitch refused point-blank. She said it was false modesty, but proof of Snitch was furious. Aids to Romance, what? Fancy cutting squares of lav paper while talking to the wounded hero you're a bit gone on. The story has gone the rounds and the patients are calling poor old Snitch Lavatory Liz.

They keep on bringing her parcels of tissue paper to the washhouse, and bits of string and scissors. Snitch will never live it down. She hasn't seen the hero yet, she won't give in and Matron won't, besides, she's afraid the story will have got to his ears and she's afraid to face him.

If it was me, I should shout with laughter, but poor old Snitch is afflicted with blighting modesty.

Have you heard from home? They make me sick with the awful stuff they write about doing our duty, etc. I think it's funny. The other day mother called me her best-hearted darling. A bit soft I thought. She always was a bit washy, but this war seems to be finishing her off.

How you and I have been able to survive mother all these years I don't know. Anyhow, there's one heroine who wouldn't have been so keen if she had known she was coming to France to spend from 6:30 a. m. to after 9 p. m. up to the elbows in greasy water in a bath of steam. I suppose it's preferable to cleaning Matron's bicycle every day for six months, as I did at Engiand during my training.

Why the dickens they dress you up in a pretty cap and make you think you're going to smooth the patient's fevered brow beats me hollow. If they told you the truth you could take it or leave it, and if you took it, as you probably would, you wouldn't feel they had let you down. They seem to think a V. A. D. is never tired, or that she ever wants any sleep.

I've never heard a dog spoken to as some of the Dukes' nurses speak to us. They are scared stiff we'll pinch their jobs after the war of course, but they needn't worry. None of us in Washing-Up Alley ever want to smell indoferon again.

All I ask is home and breakfast-in-bed for the rest of my life. I've had all the excitement I'll want. Being a V. A. D. is an overrated pastime.

Still, I am not complaining after what Dale told me about your shop, I think I'm jolly lucky. She says if she'd known there any longer she'd have gone mad, what with men dying in the ambulances under your nose, very hard and no sleep. She says is Mrs. Hitch still ruling the roost, and if she is may God have mercy on your soul, but she hopes to hear she died in horrible agony. So let me know and write soon, darling old Sis.

Your loving,
Trix.

Dear Trix, I chuckle to myself at the story of Snitch and the lavatory paper. Dear Trix, Thank God she has struck a soft job and a matron who is not all of Gehenny and no heart. I chuckle again. I feel almost happy.

A letter from Trix is so stimulating after a glass of bubbly. Dear Trix, I know sisters who detest one another, but Trix and I are not like that, I am exaggerate when I say I would die for her. She is closer to me than anyone on earth. I am happy to think she is so far from me. Nothing will induce me to tell her the truth about Mrs. Merry hell! Hell, granted, but merry——

Dear Trix—dear old Trix—

Once More the Law Is Held at Bay

Oliver B. Garrett manifests for the courts of Massachusetts the same contempt and disdain which liquor raiders have in the past demonstrated for the humble and, often, innocent people, whose homes were raided without warrant, whose property was destroyed and whose peace of mind and good reputations in the community were shamefully abused.

Garrett is alleged to typify the graft and corruption which existed in the Boston police department and which culminated in the indictment of himself on the charges of bribery and extortion and the elimination of the docile, inefficient Commissioner Wilson.

As a police officer he showed a complete absence of sympathy for the men and women he and his raiders dragged into the courts.

If his disappearance from his own trial is the result neither of illness nor accident, it can be attributed to a banishment of that blustering courage with which he haled the helpless before that same tribunal. And public sentiment would hardly be expected to enlist for him the compassion which was alien to his official nature.

The Boston Evening American has offered a reward of $1000 for exclusive information which will lead directly to the capture of this fugitive from justice.

Now, this newspaper is not, never has been and never will be found performing police work. The record of a quarter of a century shows too convincingly that it has been uniformly fighting the battles of the groups and individuals who have been least able to defend themselves.

We have no interest in Garrett as an individual.

But we do have an interest in the city of Boston and in maintaining the integrity and good name of its people.

We have an active interest in uprooting the evil conditions which distressed the police department, impaired its morale and rendered it under the circumstances incapable of acquitting an honest and meritorious service to the people.

We also have an alert interest in rectifying an unconscionable condition which saw men and women stripped of their constitutional rights and harried and plagued by a section of the police department to which the law meant but a chance to fatten itself and wreak personal vengeance upon its foes.

The Garrett case should go to trial because it contains the possibility of ridding the city of this unsavory mess and of exposing those who may be responsible for it.

The Baby 'Eaglet'

All the world joins in the happiness of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh—Charles and Anne to their millions of admirers—because of the safe arrival of their baby "eaglet."

The career of the newly arrived young man will be watched with loving interest as the days go by, and each of us will rejoice in the happiness of the youthful parents.

The old countries may take a personal interest in a birth to royalty. To Americans, the arrival of an heir to such a national idol as the modest Colonel and his young wife takes on equal interest and importance.

It was typical of the father of this highly endowed young man to accept with blushes and a shy "thanks" the congratulations of his friends over the turning of "We" into "four." That he should go about his duties, in New York, the day following the event, making his usual serious address about the future of aviation, is one of the traits that has endeared him to all the world.

To him personally, without question, the coming of his first son, and the safety and well-being of his beloved young wife are far more important events than his historic flight to Paris. Yet the furtherance of aviation is his life work. Nothing can or shall interfere with this work.

Ambitious Girls

We like the grace and dignity with which the girl clerks of the State Registry of Motor Vehicles presented their demands for higher ratings and the consequent higher salaries.

There are several hundred girls now in this department of our State, due to the extraordinary increase of the automobile. And slow promotion with a maximum salary of $1260 is not the most cheerful goal to look forward to.

These girls are ambitious. They do not want to be mere millwheels upon the neck of the State.

Public service can produce dry rot. These girls are worthily fighting against such a stupefying influence. The State should regrade them and should create within their department new posts of influence and responsibility to which they can set their talents.

What the State Needs

Joseph A. Conry places upon the bureaucrats at Washington the blame for the failure to employ our Massachusetts granite in the construction of government buildings, especially in this State.

Bureaucracy is a callous growth in our government, it is true. But let us be frank and charge some of this indifference at Washington to our own ineptitude.

Massachusetts granite is losing to Indiana limestone because Indiana has an alert delegation at Washington, attentive to its needs and willing to fight for them. We should change our own delegation or supply it with an injection of intestinal stamina. Indiana smiles at our nullity in the situation.

Tagging Our Visitors

Our out-of-State auto tourists who come to us for the Tercentenary celebrations are to be supplied with gold and blue stickers which will bear the State seal and the appropriate indication that they are guests of Massachusetts.

This device upon the windshield should stimulate such gentility and hospitality as we possess.

When the visitors depart our gates let us not have given them cause to contemplate our inconsiderateness and conclude that "the greatness of their hearts has changed to an empty name."

FOR THE U. S. A. CHAMPIONSHIP

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET
NOW, BOYS, DON'T HIT LOW! REMEMBER WHAT HAPPENED TO SHARKEY!
THE LITTLE BROWN JUG
ATTABOY, BUCKSY, WE PUT A LOT OF MONEY ON YOU!
GO TO IT, JUGSY! HE CAN'T HURT US!
DRYS
MORROW
F. OPPER

This fight you will watch this Fall, and at the big championship election in 1932.

The Old Oaken Bucket is surprised to find himself in the ring with the Little Brown Jug. He thought he had eliminated Mr. Little Brown Jug long ago. He's a dull old Barrel, not a laugh in 1,000 of him.

All "fans" know that the jug recently came back fresher than ever.

Ask Ambassador Morrow what that Little Brown Jug did to the Old Oaken Bucket in New Jersey last Tuesday. It was plenty.

Uncle Sam is a wise gentleman. You notice he has stepped over to the Little Brown Jug's corner. Everybody likes to be on the winning side.

McIntyre at Sea

By O. O. McINTYRE

ON THE ATLANTIC, June 24—Along with the notable, this ship has a sprinkling of the notorious. Twice while swaying through companionways I have suddenly looked up in the bulging eyes of Harry K. Thaw, who, with his omnipresent bodyguard, seems to be all over the paquebot.

He darts here and there like the quick rush of a fullback, stops quickly and indulges in his turkey gobbler talk. There are many who do not care to be on the same ocean with the Pittsburgh eccentric, let alone the same liner. However, he seems so far well mannered and quite inoffensive.

Among passengers, too, is the internationally celebrated and orchidaceous lady whom I vowed not to mention in these columns for some time to come. If she marries the captain in the middle of the ocean it will make a sucker of me again. But, as some comic has said, that is life!

Edna Ferber is aboard, and at lunch today I sent a note to her table reading: "Dear Miss Hurst: I am one of your admirers, having read your 'Lummox' twice." She smiled and waved and I may become the life of the ocean party yet, what with my joking and carrying on that way. I'm a case at sea.

Incidentally, I counted seven copies of Miss Ferber's "Cimarron" among book-reading voyagers today. Charlie Murray, the movie comedian, is making his first trip abroad with his wife, daughter and son-in-law. At the age when most performers are through, he is at the top of the heap and going strong.

Adele Astaire, dancer, is a deck-tripper, as are Henry and Ann Bell, Mortimer Schiff, Ray Goetz and quite a large assortment of Mr. and Mrs. Goldbergs. There are also three gentlemen in an alcoholic haze who amuse me vastly. They march prison fashion to the bar singing the Maine Stein Song.

Passengers have settled down to ship routine. We all fall naturally into leisurely dressing, petit dejeuner and joining those sleeted in reclining chairs or walking the vibrating deck. They asked me among others to auction the pool today, but I passed the buck to Charlie Murray, who is still in hiding.

I am waiting to get back to my laughing room at home to explode over the fellow dive-bopper who snapped his fingers at a mincing figure in Chinese costume and demanded a match. She happens to be the wife of a Chinese diplomat and he thought she was just another of the boat's uniformed servants.

There is to me always something vague, alluring and mysterious in watching the sea shimmer in the moonlight from a promenade deck. Here and there the restless waves are fluted with a spray of phosphorescent green. Overhead puffs of white cloud float lazily between stars. Far away is the nebulous outline of a tramp, bound for God knows where. One looks out at she vast expanse and somehow feels at peace with the unknowable—a cliched observation, but it is the feeling that is the true miracle of the sea.

My objection to these fast-stepping boats on the Atlantic run is they wear you out with entertainment. It is a gallop from gangplank to gangplank. The expert voyager does not even engage deck chair space. He wants only a promenade and his cabin.

A gentleman—his name will also be spiked here—is listed in the passenger list as Scandso "with personal physician, valet and masseur." On my next trip I'm going as "O. O. McIntyre, with flying trapezist and deaf dog with fleas."

A little six-year-old friend took me to the Grand Guignol to see the Punch and Judy show this afternoon. He nodded through the performance while I got my back out of kilter craning to peek behind the scenes.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

The Power of Meekness

KEEP YOUR eye on India. Amazing things are coming off there for India has gone meek!

Remember that Beatitude, you learned in Sunday School — "THE MEEK SHALL INHERIT THE EARTH"? You never could quite swallow that, could you? In your secret heart you believed it was all hooey. Meekies were afraid cats. How could they do anything? But they are doing plenty, over in Bombay, and their gentleness is making dynamite look like 20 cents.

Elsie Robinson

For the first time in history, a nation has run amuck and is getting results by HOLDING ITS TEMPER. You know the story, of course. The British want to run India. The Indian Nationalists want to run themselves.

In the past there have been bloody riots which availed nothing. Now, under Mahatma Ghandi, the Indians are trying a new technique —RESISTANCE WITHOUT VIOLENCE.

Sounds about as formidable as a marshmallow barrage, doesn't it? And the British at first thought it a joke. They don't think it a joke now.

How can you fight hundreds of thousands of determined people who refuse to fight back—who lie down if kicked, die quietly if shot, sing songs if arrested—but somehow come on and on?

Which is exactly what the Nationalists are now doing. Like a vast, meek fog they roll over laws and customs and forbidden areas, engulfing the British in their tremendous, terrifying tranquillity—while those gentlemen make furious, futile passes at something that isn't and won't.

A very mysterious and amazing business—meekness.

So easy to call a meek person a coward—but did you ever get into a serious mix with one of them? You'd be surprised! To all your threats and attacks, he will turn first one unresisting cheek and then another and you believe, in the hot joy of your blood lust, that you're burning him up.

But after the smoke has cleared away, YOU are the really damaged party. Your energy is dissipated. Your dignity is in the dust. And you feel like a dose of hives. But your opponent stands there cool and unruffled, with his original energy and purpose intact.

"The meek shall inherit the earth"—That's why. The rest of us waste ourselves in making passes. But the meek man doesn't waste himself—nor allow himself to be diverted from his original purposes.

He keeps his neck cool and his eye on his goal—while you're hitting wild all over the place.

Yes, without a doubt this "turn the other cheek" philosophy is the trickiest technique on earth. But just try and do it. Particularly if your grandpa's name was Pat!

H. G. Wells on 'The Science of Life'

IN COLLABORATION WITH PROF. HUXLEY AND G. P. WELLS

AS A matter of fact, whichever way the selection was made, the average weight of the beans remained the same, generation after generation. These results can only be interpreted one way — that the variations in size seen among the beans of a single plant have, in these experiments, nothing to do with heredity. Their origin must be sought in the condition to which they were exposed during their formation.

H. G. Wells

The position of the bean within the pod; the position of the pod upon the branch; the position of the branch upon the main stem; the amount of light received by the branch—these and other factors will each of them exert an influence upon the size of individual beans.

When all the separate conditions happen to be favorable, the bean will be exceptionally large; when all are unfavorable, exceptionally small. But neither the help nor the hindrance has had any effect upon the actual constitution within.

When the beans is sown, it is its interior constitution which asserts itself, not the accidental excess or defect of its weight, and the new plant develops as do all other plants of that particular constitution.

Its inner destiny was not altered by its own good or bad fortune or by the favorable or unfavorable conditions in which its parents lived.

In addition to the variations in size among the beans on a single plant, or on all the plants of one and the same strain grown in the same plot during one season, the average size for different seasons may vary, and also the average size for beans of the same strain grown under different conditions of cultivation.

But these differences, too, when the same accurate methods are applied to them, reveal themselves as non-inheritable.

Here are environmental variations due to the outside influences acting on the plant; they have nothing to do with heredity. Warmth, light, moisture and so on are moulding the individual plant and the individual bean without having any effect on the germ-plasm within it.

The germ-plasm keeps at the point from which the individual started.

This much, Johannsen, working from a single bean, found. But when he compared the offspring of different original plants—that is to say, members of different pure lines, he found another face upon things.

In the first place, many different pure lines, each with its own characteristic average seed-weight, were distinguished.

A King for Every Other Day

By ARTHUR BAER

CROWN PRINCE MICHAEL, nee King, is back in the Rumanian schools.

Why didn't Wilhelm think of that?

The first day he brought his teacher a big, red apple. You know that a fellow learns something while he's a king.

And the second day the teacher didn't make apple sauce. You can't work that racket on a Crown Prince.

Mike is now in the prime of nine years. And he isn't doing bad for a veteran of the kindergartens. He grabs himself a yearly salary of forty-two thousand dollars. And all the marbles he wins.

He can spell cat with a capital k and have the teacher nod yes like a proud horse.

When teacher asks him the answer to two and two he can refer the matter to the minister of finance.

He can lowbridge the professor with a spitball and the school committee will hand him first prize for the best work of the year.

Being a king is not all a blanket of pansies. But when a king makes faces at the teacher you know that's the kind of expression that everybody is going to wear that year.

Who's going to have the nerve to keep Mike after school when he can call out the militia or sell the shack to Henry Ford?

Will anybody tell Mike to write Constantinople a thousand times on the back of a postage stamp with a hoe handle? Will they command him to do his home work in red ink if he likes green?

Don't forget that teacher remembers that Mike was once a king, and he who has once worn the royal ermine ain't going to be fooled with rabbit fur.

Figuring the whole thing out with the aid of television and a mimeograph, we would say that the professor will treat Mike with plenty of extract of dignity.

If the teacher gets too tough with Michael he can pull off the teachers' head and put it on an umbrella where it will look much better.

He is only nine. Which is a tender age to have such responsibility placed upon your arches. We know that Carol is back home in the kinging business. But Carol has a way of switching his office hours across the frontier.

Any minute now Mike is liable to be king again. Then Carol comes back and Mike resumes the interrupted geography lessons.

We hope that Carol stays long enough for Mike to get an education. And we also know that Mike will get so tired of sliding from the throne to a school desk that he will pray that Carol makes up his mind.
